Another Kind of Hero
How to Fight Insomnia

Thomas Kane, Pennsylvania Railroad special officer, has allowed blood to be taken from his own supply forty-two times to save the lives of others, most frequently of women. Whenever possible he responds to requests, doctors know they can get blood from him, free. If he has had time to recover from the most recent transfusion. He has allowed blood to be taken from him three times in ten days, to oblige an extreme case.

That reminds you that the blood is indeed the life, that the human body is a machine of wonderful vitality, if you treat it fairly, also that there is heroism in shedding your blood to save life, as well as in spilling it in the effort to take life.

The case of Henry P. Davison, man of extreme energy and great ability, should warn all men that insomnia is nature's most urgent danger signal. Never delay or put off, when sleep begins to fall.

Consult a real doctor, not an imitation one. There are certain aids to sleep, not coil tar preparations, and in no way habit-forming drugs, that will often break up insomnia in the beginning. And insomnia must be broken up, or there is danger of shortening life. A great German doctor said years ago, to Nathan Straus, his patient, "If I had known earlier, what I know now, my life would be prolonged twenty years beyond my probable allowance. It is too late for me now." That doctor died soon after of insomnia's effects.

If insomnia is just beginning, try this: Go to bed early, OUT OF DOORS, warmly covered, wearing a night cap. Novelty will help you to sleep. Have another bed ready in an enclosed room with a bowl of milk, some crackers and a "heavy" book beside the bed. When you wake from your first outdoor sleep, unless you actually feel sleepy, don't try to continue the outdoor sleeping. Go indoors, drink your milk and eat your crackers, slowly, reading a little as you eat. Read for a few minutes afterwards. Then go to bed indoors. Don't try to sleep. Just lie, digesting. Unless your condition is very bad you will sleep again soundly. The food, taking the blood from the brain to the stomach will relieve nervous tension that causes insomnia. Try it, but get the advice of a real doctor, also.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has started for China with his wife and daughter. He will dedicate in Peking a medical establishment, paid for by his father, to fight disease and ignorance of health precautions.

Rich men interesting themselves in China's welfare have usually worried about Chinese souls, not bodies, spending money to wean Chinese from Buddha, Shintoism, Confucianism, etc. Mr. Rockefeller, very religious, has presumably done his share to help the Chinese get into our heaven. On this trip he is trying to clean up China in a sanitary way and keep Chinese diseases, plagues, etc., from getting into our country and our system. For that, thanks.

We'll be delighted to mingle, hereafter, with the souls of Chinese, white and winged, like ourselves, up above. A plan to keep up there, mingling here below of Chinese diseases, which include bubonic plague, pleases us almost as much as a new scheme for Chinese missions.

See how a man of modern millions uses money's power. Once he spent it chiefly to purchase immunity for his own soul. Now he fights disease with hospitals, and ignorance with universities.

BUT DON'T forget that Mr. Rockefeller's great contribution to the world is his demonstration of the fact that competition is unnecessary and wasteful. In days to come, when the people own and operate all their own natural monopolies, historians will say, "John D. Rockefeller taught them that the thing could be done."

Well, the excess profits tax is to go, and if business genius can make a few millions—incidentally giving work to labor—it can keep the money, instead of handing it over to Uncle Sam. If there is one thing that leaves big business cold, it is working FOR Uncle Sam. Quite another matter is WORKING UNCLE SAM for big finance, is the favorite in and outdoor sport.

With excess profit tax gone, let us see what business intelligence will do to start business going. If it does nothing, the tax might as well go back.

No patriot can complain that James W. Gerard lacked anti-German bitterness while the war was on. What he said about the Kaiser you would hardly say about your landlord. He made a moving picture in which all German soldiers cut legs and arms from Belgian children for souvenirs and sent home to mother photographs of Belgian young ladies dragged by the hair to "Hun lairs." That was patriotic propaganda. You must teach soldiers to hate the enemy.

Now Gerard denounces the pro-

Rum Ship Safe From Dry Agents

McMasters Admits Lack of Funds to Watch "Callers" on Arethusa

So far as prohobition agents and revenue men here are concerned there will be no immediate intrrference with the activities of the liquor ship Arethusa, which is anchored beyond the three-mile limit of Martha's Vineyard and doing a thriving business in "wet goods."

For the present, at least, the "booze ship" is beyond the arm of the law.

Collector of the Port Alfred P. Luffkin admitted officers were making an investigation but declared all he was interested in were reports of smuggling. He added that he did not believe the ship was engaged in smuggling.

Gordon C. McMasters, chief deputy of the prohibition field force here, acknowledged his inability to cope with the situation.

McMasters pointed out that his department did not possess a floating force to stand by and make sure American citizens were not smuggling liquor ashore. Neither did he have any money to charter the necessary boats.

The deputy declared one of the main difficulties lay in the fact that the courts had ruled that to obtain a warrant to search a small boat officers must be able to describe definitely what they intended to find.

In the case of rum-running launches operating between the Arethusa and the shore, he said, this was mutually impossible, as, by the time officers had seen what the small boats carried, they would be unloaded and the cargo disposed of.

Notwithstanding these statements, there was a feeling in the air today that some way halt the activities of the Arethusa would be found shortly.

LITTLE GLORIA CARUSO

New York, Aug. 12.—Will little Gloria Caruso be a great operatic singer, like her father?

Enrico Caruso, world's greatest tenor, frequently expressed the opinion that his baby daughter had inherited his vocal ability, and in a letter written just before his death the song bird told friend he was sure Gloria would show marked dramatic ability as well.

The child sings as unconsciously as a bird, according to family friends, and has a voice of great power and sweetness.

FAIR AND COOLER WEATHER PREDICTED

A drop of the mercury to about 62 degrees, with fair weather tonight and tomorrow, are predicted by Forecaster Smith, who said that in all probability the temperature would reach 62 before midnight and might be even lower. This cool spell is due, he added, to the cold weather they are having in the middle west and northwest. The humidity in Boston today hovered about the 84 degree mark, with threats of going higher. Showers are reported falling all over New England, caused by the storm which is central on this section.

TEN HURT AS MOTOR HITS TREE

Machine Filled With Gardner Young Men Leaves Road. One Believed Dying

By International News Service.

Greenfield, Aug. 12.—One man is believed to be fatally injured and nine other young men, all from Gardner, received injuries early today when their large touring car, returning to Gardner from this place, left the road near Montague and after running along about fifty feet in meadowland, crashed into a tree.

The injured taken to the Farren Hospital at Montague are:

Marvin Bulkes, lacerations of throat, badly cut by flying glass from the windshield. May die.

Charles Hankes, of No. 165 High street, Gardner, who was in charge of the party. Cut about face.

Henry G. Genetis, of No. 24 Ragna street, Gardner, cut about face.

Anthony Vezzosi, of No. 44 Lemay street, Gardner; fractured left arm.

Rosalie Le Clair and Fred Landree, both of Gardner, minor injuries.

The other four members of the party were slightly injured but were able to proceed to their homes.

The ten young men came to Greenfield crowded in a single large touring car to attend a dance at Franacis Park. They started back on the return trip after midnight. While going east towards Montague the car suddenly swerved from the road and after plunging along for fifty feet brought up against a tree. The impact threw the four occupants of the front seat in all directions, ripped out the entire seat and forced the engine backward into the car.

Mrs. Davison and their two daughters and J. P. Morgan, with some intimate friends of the family, waited in the reception room for news. The operation was performed by Dr. Frederick Elsberg and Dr. Evan Evans.

Mr. Davison was "progressing satisfactorily" this afternoon. He was on the operating table more than two hours. His trouble was found to be exactly as diagnosed.

HUSBAND TOOK WRONG CHILD, SAYS WIFE

The story of an attempted kidnaping of his own child by a father and the kidnaping of another child by mistake, was told to the Chelsea police today by Mrs. Gladys Carr, wife of Harold F. Carr, a burlesque actor.

According to Mrs. Carr, who lives at No. 34 Shirley street, Revere, she was sitting on the porch of her home when her husband, whom she is suing for divorce, drove up in a taxi, accompanied by two men.

With her at the time, she said, was her mother, Mrs. Nellie P. Franks, the boy, two-year-old Kenneth Carr, and Dorothy Norris, the child of a neighbor.

One of the men got out of the machine and opened conversation with Mrs. Carr, she says. Hardly was her back turned when Carr, who had remained concealed in the back of the taxi, jumped to the street and made a frantic effort to seize Kenneth.

In his excitement he seized the wrong child. Before he had gone more than a few feet, however, he discovered his mistake and dropped the baby girl in the sidewalk, while he wrestled back to seize Kenneth.

But Mrs. Franks had seen through the trick by this time and leaped from the porch rail to Carr's back as he bent to pick up the boy. There was a desperate fight. Mrs. Carr declares, in which she joined. Carr finally yanked himself loose, jumped into the waiting automobile and vanished down the street. Mrs. Carr told the police that she jumped into a passing machine and tried to catch her husband, but in vain.

GIRL TRAPS RUNAWAY HUSBAND

Beacon Street Man, Found in New Hampshire Town, Is Held for Non-Support

James W. Ratcliffe, who disappeared from his home, No. 1483 Beacon street, Brookline, in January, 1919, following filing of his wife's suit against Miss Dorothy Smith, Dana street, Cambridge, is in the Charles Street Jail, awaiting trial on a secret indictment obtained against him by District Attorney Pelletier three months ago.

He was arrested by a queer twist of fate in a little town not far from Nashua, N. H. where he had been in hiding ever since his disappearance, brought back to Boston and after arraignment in the Municipal Court, held for the Superior Court, on a charge of nonsupport.

The Nemesis that overtook Ratcliffe, was in the form of a pretty girl, a friend of the wife he abandoned three years ago. This girl was spending her vacation in the little town where Ratcliffe had been hiding.

She was passing the tiny Episcopal church there when the sound of music attracted her attention, and going inside the first person that met her eye was Ratcliffe. He was playing a violin.

ARREST FOLLOWED.

She had known him slightly in the days when he and Mrs. Ratcliffe were happy together in Brookline, but to make assurance doubly sure she called an usher and asked the name of the violinist. When she learned it was Ratcliffe she immediately telephoned to the district attorney's office here and Ratcliffe's arrest followed.

The Ratcliffes were married in 1915. The husband was a successful automobile salesman, making good both socially and in his business. His wife, a tall, remarkably handsome woman also was popular socially, and as a rule sinned.

For four years they appeared to be most happy. A baby came to them and Mrs. Ratcliffe's health broke. Operation followed operation. Ratcliffe

Miss Owen was pretty and very popular, but friends admit they knew little of her heart affairs.

READY TO NEGOTIATE, VALERA SAYS

Dublin Reports That Irish Reply to Lloyd George Is Favorable

By International News Service.

Dublin, Aug. 12.—Eamon de Valera's letter to Premier Lloyd George informed the Premier that the Sinn Fein Parliament (Dail Eireann) was ready to negotiate for peace upon the English terms, according to the best of authority here today.

Dail Eireann will meet next Tuesday.

The communication, so far as could be learned here, does not request the release of all the Sinn Feiners now detained in prison or detention camps.

The Republican leaders are conscious of the fact that such a demand would precipitate a breakdown of the negotiations.

Frank P. Walsh of New York and Kansas City, who arrived here yesterday, has become a man of mystery. Cornelius Sullivan, a New York lawyer, who accompanied Mr. Walsh, occupied Walsh's hotel room as a decoy while the latter dined with Sinn Fein leaders and afterwards attended a secret conference of Republican chieftains.

The Sinn Fein leaders were quiet today over the peace situation.

Arthur Griffith, president of the Sinn Fein, called at Mansion House, accompanied by W. P. Cosgrove, a Sinn Fein member of Parliament.

Griffith refused to divulge the contents of the Sinn Fein communication, but declared that "everything is going very well."

Cabinet Called to Consider Irish Reply

SINN FEIN ACCEPT THE BRITISH TERMS, SAYS DUBLIN REPORT

READY FOR PARLEY ON PEACE

the Irish republican Parliament next Tuesday.

Rumors that the reply of Eamon de Valera, the Irish Republican leader, to the British governments Irish peace proposals, which was received here yesterday, had produced a serious crisis in the Irish situation were generally discredited here today.

The attitude taken by the British Capital today was that, although the terms of the Irish missive still were unknown, negotiations between the government and the Irish Republicans would continue under favorable conditions.

It was suggested that the hurried return of the prime minister from Paris was prompted by a recognition of the fact that the short interval before the meeting of the Irish Republican Parliament made it desirable that Mr. De Valera have the government's considered response as long as possible before the meeting of the Dail Eireann.

NO DEMAND FOR AMNESTY.

Art O'Brien, head of the Irish Self-Determination League and so-called Sinn Fein Ambassador to London, formally denied reports current here that Eamon de Valera's reply includes a demand for amnesty.

"It is obvious, however, that such procedure would improve conditions under which the negotiations are being carried on," added O'Brien.

The Irish Office states that there are about 7,000 Sinn Feiners imprisoned or interned. The government has taken no action regarding their release.

In Irish Office circles belief was expressed that the recent trip of De Valera to York was in reality an effort to pacify the extremist elements in the district, which have been growing restive.

The Cork Republicans have been grumbling over the delay and threatening to renew hostilities, thus endangering the negotiations now proceeding between Dublin and Downing street.

TERMS CONSIDERED GOOD.

From a person well acquainted with the negotiations the following statement was obtained:

"No Irishman, no matter how extreme his feelings, can possibly hedge if De Valera accepts these terms. On the whole Ireland has been offered almost total separation, the only block being that the English Unionist party demands that Ireland should acknowledge the English sovereignty and insists upon safeguards for Ulster.

"The Unionists, since the first of these terms was placed before the Irish republicans, have modified the terms so much that they have practically agreed to all that the Sinn Feiners want."

RAP GENERAL ELECTRIC WAGE CUT AS UNFAIR

Declaring that the wage reduction recently instituted by the General Electric Company at its Lynn plant is "unfair, arbitrary and insufficient," 560 employes met in Lester's Hall last night and formulated resolutions protesting against the pay cut.

Charles D. Keaveney, international organizer of the Electrical Workers' Union, told the workers that the reduction was the forerunner of an organized attempt on the part of big business to force wages back to prewar levels.

CANADA'S WHEAT CROP TO EXCEED LAST YEAR'S

Ottawa, Aug. 12—Canada's wheat crop this year will exceed last year's by more than 25,000,000 bushels, but most other crops show a decrease. Estimates published today by the dominion bureau of statistics give the wheat yield as 454,482,000 bushels, based on conditions of July 21.

SHARK FAILS TO SCARE SWAMPSCOTT BATHERS

Swampscott, Aug. 12.—Bathers at Fisher's Beach, near here, have refused to let the fact that a 10-foot man-eating shark was caught near shore here recently frighten them away from their daily dips. The beach continues crowded as usual. The shark is the tenth caught in this neighborhood in the past four years.

Sheriff Rushes Aid to Detroit Dry Agent to Stop Rum

By International News Service.

Detroit, Aug. 12.—Sheriff Irving J. Coffin today rushed to the aid of James W. Jordan, Federal prohibition enforcement officer, to check the flow of liquor from Canada to the United States.

This marked the first effort of Detroit officials to meet the conditions brought about by the action of Canada's custom officers in permitting liquor cargoes to clear for the United States.

"I'm ready to supply the Federal agent with every available man," said the sheriff when informed of the activity along the lower river front.

With the announcement Thursday that the courts had upheld the right of Canadian distillers and brewers to ship liquor into this country, there was a wholesale demand for clearance papers. Load after load of beer and whiskey was presented for clearance and then sent to Sandwich for transfer to speedboats that have been running liquor in to this country for months.

LEGAL REFORMS MAY FOLLOW TUFTS TRIAL

Disbarment Proceedings May Be Started as Result of of Disclosures

Strong hint of action against lawyers who, it seems figured in the evidence, was given in arguments by counsel at the trial of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts on charges of malfeasance, which ended yesterday before the full Supreme Court, after having been in progress twenty-four days.

Disbarment proceedings and legislative measures for legal reforms are looked for as the result of revelations at the trial. Chief Justice Rugg adjourned court without day and without giving any suggestion as to when the written decision will be handed down. The rescript will be given to the Reporter of Decisions when ready.

A hasty finding is expected owing to the urgency of either exonerating or removing Tufts in order to restore normal conditions in the office of the county prosecutor of the Northern District.

With the Loud case and other important matters pending, the question of whether Tufts is fit, in the opinion of the court, is one that demands prompt disposition.

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen suggested that the court had the power to remove Tufts and to order the disbarment of lawyers guilty of misconduct. He assailed "that group of lawyers who keep no books and records."

Special Attorney-General Henry F. Hurlburt who closed for the prosecution said that although Attorney Ranney "had dragged in the name of Pelletier" he would refrain from discussing conditions outside of Middlesex which he felt were fit subject for further inquiry.

Hurlburt reminded the court that the public and Bar were tremendously interested in the outcome. He said the reputation of the court and the public welfare demanded the removal of Tufts.

NORTH BENNET STREET KINDERGARTEN CLOSES

The North Bennet Street School kindergarten classes closed their season today with a party, at which twenty-five girls and boys had plenty of good ice cream cones, music and games, and fun dear to childish hearts. The season was brought to a close on the busiest and one of the hottest days of the year. Agnes Shaw founded the work there. The canning classes have put up large quantities of fruit and vegetables. The success of the settlement have been taught to cooperate. Delicious hasher luncheon and then the young pupils have gone up on the roof and picnicked. At the school farm, at Belmont, Hooker Woodwood, New Hampshire, children, with their mothers, have enjoyed outings and visits. The camp will be open during the Summer over 200 children have been entertained at North Bennet street.

OVERSUPPLY OF MILK IN RHODE ISLAND

Providence, R. The surplus is going used largely in the manufactures of cheese and butter, although much of it has to be thrown away.

WAS DUPED BY INGALLS, SAYS SALEM GIRL

done nothing wrong. I am not to blame for anything."

But friends of the girl—friends who have chummed with her for the past seven years—were anxious to come to her defense and tell the tale of the dual life of the Swampscott water board clerk.

"Martha Morecroft is one of the finest and sweetest girls that I have ever known," said Mrs. Lotta Stevens, a former "pal" of the ousted girl.

"I have known her for the past seven years, and she has been fooled by Ingalls. In all that time she has never had any other sweetheart but Ingalls. He was her first and only love, and for the past five years she has been looking forward to the time when they would be married. When they would have their own little home all by themselves. And little did she think that her sweetheart—her only love—was all the while married to another woman, whom he was supporting in the adjoining town, almost under her very nose."

LOVE-MAKING AT THEATRE.

"He was known to all of us as Jimmy Rogers," said Mrs. Stevens. "Martha knew him only by that name and it was by that name that she introduced him to me and to all of her friends. It was by that name he was known when he boarded at the Morecroft home for about two years."

She then told of how he "wound and blew her to a picture show in Salem when he was but with another young folks" when he was not with her. Of how he did not even want to go out with her to parties at night, and how he had "brazenly sat in a box in a Salem theatre with his arm around the girl."

"Martha seemed very happy each morning when, arm in arm, they would come down to the station together; she on her way to work in Salem and he, as he said, on his way in his duties as a shoe salesman."

"Why, Martha's heart was wrapped up in him. She had been gathering together hundreds of articles for her 'hope chest' in anticipation of her wedding. And her other girl friends gave her presents at Christmas time for the chest, and all of the engaged girls, was happy while she was adding to the store of dainty things that she expected would eventually be used in her home with Jimmy."

MET HER SIGHTLY.

Mrs. Stevens then told of how the Morecrofts moved from a small house to a bigger one in order that he might have a room in their home. Of how he met her every night at five minutes of six as she came from her work. Of how they went home together. All the while with his wife occupying their home in Swampscott.

"The girl is not well—has not been well for a long time," said Mrs. Stevens, "and I am sure this blow will be a serious one for her. I fear for her health as a result."

Miss Morecroft is slightly over medium height. She is rather thin and pale. But when she has a sweet face—a gentle, trusting face, and wistful appealing eyes. She is a pleasing and altogether charming young woman of twenty-four years.

Contrary to the general opinion that the great blow would drive her from her work in a Salem store, she is sticking to her task. She is determined not to let the experience of the past down her. She bravely says, "I do not want any sympathy. I did not do wrong."

And her friends—she has them in large number—are all saying: "It is a shame, a miserable shame. She is such a sweet girl."

2 "KIDS" WHO SEEK RIGHTS IN WORLD OF PLAY

'GIVE US PLACE TO PLAY,' PLEAD SAD 'KIDS'

King Street, Dorchester, Boys "Out of Luck" for Amusement

When a group of healthy boys, full of energy and vim, haven't any place to play ball and exercise their lungs, and are prohibited by the police from playing on the sidewalks near their homes because the neighbors complain of the noise—well, the youngsters are liable to find themselves up against it for amusements.

That is the situation that prevails on King street, Dorchester, where a number of boys ranging in age from five to ten years are having a mighty hard time finding a place where "the fellow can play."

There is no playground in the vicinity. There isn't even a vacant lot. So the boys took to roller-skating, and constructed "scooters" out of small boards and skate wheels. By coasting up and down the sidewalks in front of their homes, they found an outlet for their surplus energy.

COMPLAIN TO POLICE.

But some of the neighbors didn't take kindly to this for of amusement. The clatter of the skate wheels on the pavement, the joyous shouts of the youngsters as they shot back and forth, combined to make a good deal of racket. So, a few days ago, complaint was made to the police and as a result the boys have been told that they must keep off the sidewalks with their skates and coasters.

Not all of the residents of King street, however, favor the restrictions. One citizen who has five youngsters of his own is willing to sacrifice a little of his quiet so as to let the kids have a good time. He has painted a big sign, which stands in the lawn in front of his home at No. 97 King street and reads:

"Who hates to see a happy kid?"

Many of the neighbors agree with the sentiment the sign expresses and the youngsters are for it heart and soul.

"What can we do?" asked eight-year-old Vincent Sorgi. "There's no place for us to go but here on the walks. And now the cops chase us off. We've got to play somewhere."

SCHOOL YARDS CLOSED.

There are two capacious school yards in the vicinity—one at King and Adams streets, the other at Adams and Mills streets. But for some reason these yards are closed and the youngsters are forbidden to enter them. Just why, no one seems to know.

Mrs. Richard Killen, of No. 105 King street, is an opponent of the sidewalk coasting and skating. "I lived and nervously," she said, "These children begin romping up and down the street, and you can hardly hold a conversation on your own front porch. I like to see children have a good time, but we're paying for quiet and peace here and I think we have a right to it."

Officials at the playground department, in City Hall, say that they can provide no relief unless the city council votes an appropriation for a playground. This must come before them at the request of citizens or Mayor Peters. So far, they say, no such requests have been received.

Residents on King street, however, declare they intend to see that something is done.

Meanwhile, the youngsters are still "out of luck."

HAVERHILL SHOE PLANT CLASSIFICATION STANDS

Haverhill, Aug. 12.—The final arbitration board consisting of Nap Theriault, Patrick T. Hughes and Henry G. Wells, has ruled that there shall be no change in the classification of local turn shoe factories. The ruling affects 2,500 turn shoe makers. This decision is final under the peace pact accepted by the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers Association of forty firms and the Shoe Workers Protective Union with thirteen thousand members. The board suggests that injustices should first come to the attention of the price committees of the board.

REDS STRIVE TO MEET HOOVER'S ULTIMATUM

Will Even Advertise for Americans in Newspapers, Soviet Envoy Says

By Associated Press.

Riga, Letvia, Aug. 12.—The Soviet government will combat any attempt to interject political questions into the Russian famine relief, but it is sufficiently practical to see that if the holding of Americans in prison is an obstacle to the feeding of a million Russian children it is willing to fix them all in accordance with Herbert Hoover's stipulation, declared Maxim Litvinoff ,the Soviet special envoy here.

In addition to releasing those held in prison in Russia, the envoy announced, every facility to leave will be given any American in the country, even to the extent of advertising for them in the newspapers. Obviously the government could not undertake to locate them all, however, he added, as even the list the American government has prepared is probably inaccurate.

M. Litvinoff stated that British, French and other subjects whose repatriation had been granted long ago were still appearing now and then asking for passports to leave Russia.

"MIKE" GILLOOLY AND W. BREWOGEL

"Who hates to see a happy kid?" That is the slogan on which a number of King street, Dorchester, residents are championing the cause of a group of hapless youngsters who are entirely without playground facilities. War looms in the neighborhood as a result of a police order forbidding play on the sidewalks of the street.

WANT WOMAN ON DISARMAMENT COMMISSION

Prominent Leaders Urge Harding to Give Them Representation

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Agitation to have President Harding name a woman member of the American disarmament commission is becoming nation-wide, according to a statement issued today from the national headquarters of the League of American Pen Women. A symposium of the views of club women all over the country was made public as follows:

Mrs. Haymon Hobbs, president of the National Women's Trade Union League:

"The question of disarmament and the re-establishment of normal conditions overshadows every other question."

Mrs. William A. Dupuy, president of the League of Americans, Pen Women:

"I feel confident that if women are not given representation, they will start a united effort against war and will never give their aid to their governments for another."

Mrs. Thomas G. Winters, president general of the Federation of Women's Clubs:

"The general Federation of Women's Clubs would like to see a woman named but emphatically demands the appointment be made on a basis of fitness only and not from political consideration."

Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the National Council of Women:

"Women's viewpoint might well be included in the choice of representatives to the conference."

Mrs. H. H. Dey, president of the Women's Press Club:

"We are a unit in the desire for Universal disarmament and the first step would be one of requesting President Harding to appoint a woman to the conference."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National League of Women Voters:

"If the wife of the American delegation warrants, a thoroughly qualified woman familiar with women's interests and experienced in international affairs should be appointed."

NAVAL OFFICERS FACE REDUCTION IN RANK

Washington, Aug. 12.—More than 1,500 naval officers will be affected by a plan shortly to become effective whereby the personnel at all shore stations will be drastically cut to provide personnel to man new ships, it was learned today.

All temporary commissions will be cancelled by December 31, 1921 under the existing law, it is said. This means a large number of officers holding advanced rank will be reduced in grade to their permanent ranks and others will be returned to their reserve status.

POLICE ASKED TO FIND MISSING FITCHBURG BOY

Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley has received a letter requesting assistance in locating Thomas Arthur Crowell, twenty-one years old, who recently made a hurried trip from Fitchburg to the State of Maine. The communication states that he has relatives living at No. 325 Kane avenue, Hammond, Ind.

Policeman's Descent Reveals Old Well on Tremont Row

The fall of Babylon had nothing on Tremont Row today, when a section of sidewalk in front of No. 8, dropped suddenly from beneath the fine, large feet of Patrolman Paul Crowley of Division 2.

With an agonized expression on his face, Crowley leaped to safety, while the hurrying throngs paused in their career to watch one of Boston's finest in an expiring attempt to emulate a Rocky Mountain goat.

After a few moments devoted to recovering his breath, and his uniform cap, Officer Crowley warned back the crowd from the yawning cavity, and telephoned Police Hall. There, while the morbidly curious gazed with bated breath, Crowley bravely approached the chasm and peered in.

He discovered an old well five feet beneath the sidewalk, and about ten feet deep, into which a quantity of dirt and bricks had fallen. Investigation revealed the fact that one of two flagstones that covered the top of the well, had slipped in.

PROVIDENCE GIRL GIVES OFFICERS HARD TUSSLE

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 12—Eva Brinkwater of No. 142 Sabin street, Providence, was found unconscious by Motorcycle Patrolman Motta on a lawn at No. 73 Summit street. He sent her to the Memorial Hospital, where physicians treated her.

When she recovered consciousness she put up such a strenuous battle that it was necessary to put her in a strait-jacket. The woman burst the fastenings, however, and gave seven nurses and several attendants a hard time before she was finally subdued. Later she was arraigned in the Tenth District Court on a charge of drunkenness and fined $5 and costs.

JAZZ DANCING BLAMED FOR FAILURE OF PUPILS

Westfield, Aug. 12.—Jazz dancing, social relations in the evening, and the general disinclination of pupils and parents to co-operate with the school authorities are blamed by Louis V. Sanborn, who are relatives of mine. They accompanied us to Monroe, where we were married shortly after noon. I know I am not going to write you anymore now," he told the newspaper men.

PRESIDENT IS TOLD.

At the doctor's suggestions Mrs. Harding was taken to her home. He then asked to be driven to his home four squares away.

First official announcement of the marriage was telegraphed to President Harding late last night by an employes of his newspaper, the Marion Star.

The wedding, who is seventy-seven years old, has been a practicing physician for more than 50 years. The bride was born in Marion County fifty-two years ago.

Her father, Oscar Severns, was one of the pioneer settlers of Marion County. He and his wife died several years ago. Dr. Harding has five living children. His first wife died eleven years ago.

posed partition of Silesia, and he is right. Taking from Germany the mines, factories, iron works that she has created, soil that she has populated and developed would be like taking away Alsace-Lorraine 50 miles in all directions from Pennsylvania, and handing it over to Lithuania, because Lithuanians work in Pittsburgh mills.

Of course, as Gerard says, Germany will take back the confiscated property some day. It is merely establishing another Alsace-Lorraine problem and making sure of another big war.

HARDING'S SIRE IS BACK ON THE JOB

Father of President Returns to Marion After Elopement With Office Assistant

By Associated Press.

Marion, O., Aug. 12.—George T. Harding, seventy-six-year-old father of President Harding, was at his office as usual today following his marriage yesterday to Miss Alice Severns, his office attendant, at Monroe, Mich.

Dr. Harding arrived at his office at the usual hour and shortly afterwards came out, climbed into his old buggy, known during his son's Presidential campaign as the "One hoss shay," and drove away.

Excepting few interruptions of friends who stopped him to offer congratulations he made his calls as usual.

Scores of surprised townsfolk today personally tendered best wishes to the venerable physician and his bride, both of whom are well known by the majority of Marion residents.

Efforts to keep the marriage a secret were to no avail, although not until after the couple reached Marion last night, six hours after Rev. Frank T. Knowles, a Presbyterian minister at Monroe, had pronounced them man and wife, did Dr. Harding admit that he had become a benedict.

REFUSED IN CANADA.

In Toledo, a few hours previous, he curtly told newspaper men that he and Miss Severns had not been married. Later he explained that he thought it was none of their business.

Arriving at the station here last night, Dr. Harding and his bride, hurrying to catch a trolley car, were met by two local newspaper men who offered congratulations and transportation in an automobile. They accepted both.

He said Miss Severns and he left Marion together Wednesday morning and that Wednesday afternoon they passed a license in Windsor, Canada, because we were not residents," Dr. Harding said.

"We spent Wednesday night in Detroit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis V. Sanborn, who are relatives of mine. They accompanied us to Monroe, where we were married shortly after noon. I know I am not going to write you anymore now," he told the newspaper men.

MISSING GUNSTOCK SOUGHT AS LINK IN KENNEDY MURDER CHAIN

SEA GIVES UP BUTT OF WEAPON

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12.—Search for the stock of a double-barrelled shotgun, believed to be part of the weapon with which J. Belton Kenney, wealthy young broker, was slain a week ago, occupied the attention today of officers working on the case.

With the indictment on first degree murder charges of Arthur C. Burch and Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, principals in the sensational case, investigators were endeavoring to forge together the links in the chain of evidence. The missing gunstock is regarded as an important link in the chain.

The butt of the shotgun, which officials say they believe is the weapon that sent its charge of buckshot into the brain of Young Kennedy, was found in the surf at Santa Monica last Saturday about sixteen hours after the murder had been committed. The butt was taken from the water by William Wylie.

In a sworn statement made public today Wylie asserted that the butt was shiny and only slightly rusted when he found it.

Wylie was camping at Santa Monica when he found the gun and he attached no significance to his find until he learned that divers were searching for the murder gun in the ocean near an abandoned pier.

SAW WOMAN IN ROOM

Officers announced today they believed they would be able to identify this gun butt as that of the weapon with which Kennedy was killed.

Officers of a private detective agency working with newspapermen declared they had discovered a new witness in the person of a janitress in the building in which Kennedy had his office.

Three nights prior to the slaying, according to the story the janitress told investigators, Kennedy left his office in response to a hand-kerchief wave from a woman in a hotel room across the downtown street.

According to the janitress' statements, this was the room which she later learned was Burch's. She said her curiosity was aroused and from the street she could see, besides a woman in the room, a man sitting on the bed.

BRUISES ON BURCH

She said Kennedy returned to his office after ten or fifteen minutes. Her story has been conveyed to the district attorney.

Another angle of the case that came to light today was learned said to have been given to the grand jury yesterday that Burch had a thorn in his knee when he got off the train at Las Vegas. The thorn was removed, it was said, by Dr. J. J. Finn.

Malcolm MacLaren, investigator for the district attorney's office, introduced branches or shrubbery picked at the scene of the murder that bore thorns similar to the one extracted from Burch's knee.

Another important bit of testimony was that given to the grand jury by a jail surgeon who is said to have stated that Burch's shoulder showed a slight dislocation, such as might have been produced by the recoil of a gun. It was on these points of testimony, it is believed, that Burch was indicted.

APPEAR INDIFFERENT.

Mrs. Obenchain was indicted because of a telegram she is said to have sent to Burch two weeks before Kennedy was slain. This telegram, the State contends, read: "Things look bad here. Please come at once. Madalynne."

Mrs. Obenchain denied sending this telegram and holds that she asked Burch to come here because she believed "he needed a rest and a change." Although both Burch and Mrs. Obenchain were taken before the Grand Jury each refused to testify.

The two defendants, while showing signs of worry, maintained a stoical air of assumed indifference and optimism over their plight today.

DIVERS HUNT BODIES OF TWO, DROWNED IN LAKE

Wolfeboro, N. H., Aug. 12.—The bodies of Kimball Sayles, 18 years old, of Belmont, and Nathaniel Rice, 21 years old, of Worcester, are still hidden in the waters of Lake Winnipesaukee, near Moose Island, despite the efforts of divers who worked all day to recover the bodies.

The young men were drowned Tuesday, and relatives who are directing the search say that if the divers cannot locate the bodies today dynamite will be used.

FRANCE GREETS LEGION ENVOYS AT CHERBOURG

ROXBURY MAN HURT BY JOLT FROM LIVE WIRE

Daniel Keenan of No. 26 Regent street, Roxbury, jolted from his perch twenty feet in the air when he came in contact with a live wire carrying 3 50 volts of electricity while working on a cable feeder in Main street, Malden, was saved from a fall to the ground by his life belt, which held him helpless in the air.

Fellow employes rushed him to Malden Hospital, where he was treated for severe burns.

Surrenders Army of Spain to Rebel Moors

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 12.—An official despatch received by the Spanish embassy, from Madrid today, indicated that the whole Spanish army of General Navarro, which had been surrounded by rebellious Moors at Mount Arruit, in Morocco, had surrendered.

The message said: "The surrender of General Navarro and his forces does not alter the Spanish military program in any way. Melilla and neighboring territory captured by the Spaniards from the tribesmen are quiet. Preparations for another Spanish advance continue satisfactorily."

FACES IN STONE ON BUILDINGS AT YALE

Hardkness Memorial Quadrangle Contains Many Historical Carvings

By Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 12.—Faces in stone are being found by visitors who, under university guides, inspect the Harkness memorial quadrangle at Yale. Except during Commencement week when rooms in this group of buildings were occupied by delegates to the inauguration of President James Howland Angell and some of the alumni, the courts and entries have not been freely open to the public.

Parties are being conducted at intervals though the quadrangle, and there more than one of the visitors have noticed some of the carvings which have been and are being cut on the walls.

Unlike those in St. Thomas Church in New York City, where much of the sculpture in the detail of the Gothic architecture is in caricature, the carvings in the quadrangle are traditional, studied lines of men and incidents connected with the life of the university and of the early settlement of New Haven.

The strange room is a carving of the "Mystery Ship," which, as the story goes, entered the harbor in 1643 and was seen to be wrecked and then vanish. Four bulldogs, in stone, are there as symbols of undergraduate life.

FACES OF NOTABLES.

One with unwrinkled brow wears tinted glasses and another with wrinkled face has a football player's helmet, another a soldier's cap and the fourth wears cap and gown. On an entrance arch is a rose, a thistle, a shamrock and an elm, the last named for New Haven.

A square, compass, level and plumb line have been found elsewhere. Among the figures and facts on towers are those of Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph; Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin; Elihu Yale, James Fenimore Cooper, Jonathan Edwards, Nathan Hale, Noah Webster, John Caldwell Calhoun, former President Arthur T. Hadley, James Gamble Rogers, architect of the buildings, and several of those who had charge of divisions of the construction.

Inscriptions are found in many places. That beside Nathan Hale is "I wish to be useful," a quotation from one of his sayings. Chief Justice Taft is the only living man to have a gateway named after himself. A group of figures in working clothes with pick and shovel symbolise the Yale men who worked on the buildings.

HISTORICAL RECORD.

According to George Nichols, resident architect, the purpose of filling the nooks in the buildings with figures is to make an historical record that can be read by all who care to take the time and trouble.

The window panes in the rooms have old pictures burnt in them, illustrating student life and incidents, and these have already been described to some extent through university publications.

But carvings are now coming to the attention of those who visit the buildings on which workmen are constantly engaged in carrying out the details.

MRS. HEARST NAMED ON MONSON BOARD

New York, Aug. 12.—Mrs. William Randolph Hearst has been appointed to the committee which is to make disposition of the Monson Memorial fund. The committee was enlarged from three to four members at the suggestion of Peter G. Lavery, donor of a monument, that it might include a woman in its personnel. Mrs. Hearst was chosen for the post because of her work as chairman of Mayor Hylan's committee of women and because of her efforts in the behalf of wounded war veterans. The gift of the monument was made on condition that the fund be devoted to the relief of disabled soldiers.

"Women know better than men how to look after wounded soldiers," said Mr. Lavery in nominating Mrs. Hearst as the fourth member of the committee. "They know the little things that make for comfort of the sick and disabled."

CUBAN CONVICTS TO REPLACE STRIKERS

Havana, Aug. 12.—Inmates of the State prisons will be employed by the Department of Public Works to keep the streets in a sanitary condition if the strike of street cleaners is continued, it was officially announced last night. The street cleaners walked out Wednesday after demands for unpaid back wages had not been met.

WAS DUPED BY INGALLS, SAYS SALEM GIRL

Martha Morecroft of Salem Wooed for 5 Years by "Jimmy Rogers"

Under the alias of "Jimmy Rogers," S. Russell Ingalls, self-confessed water clerk embezzler and married man, won the confidence of and wooed Miss Martha C. Morecroft of Salem for a period of five years, the Boston American learned today.

This admission was made by Mrs. Cynthia W. Morecroft, of No. 3 Saunders street, Salem, who said that her daughter had been engaged to "Rogers" for some time.

"My daughter is innocent of any wrong," said Mrs. Morecroft. "She has been done a great injustice."

"If anyone says that my daughter is to blame for the downfall of this man Ingalls, who has never been known to by that name, he is not telling the truth."

Despite the fact that the water board officials have suppressed and the police of Salem put forth a determined effort to keep the girl's name from the public, it was learned by a Boston American reporter, and the girl found at her home on Saunders street, Salem.

KNEW HIM AS "ROGERS."

Miss Morecroft was reluctant to admit that she was the girl, and at first attempted to deny the fact. She insisted that she did not know a man by the name of Ingalls, but refused to deny that she knew one by the name of "Jimmy Rogers." It was under the name of "Jimmy Rogers" that Ingalls was known to the girl, and it was by that name that the girl introduced him to her friends. It was by that name that he was known to the people of Salem with whom he was acquainted.

But Mrs. Morecroft, suffering from the shock of the discovery that her daughter had been duped, admitted that Ingalls was the man to whom her daughter was engaged. And there were things she told of her troubles-lined face as she declared that she had been told not to talk about the matter even by the lawyer advised to by the chairman of the Swampscott water board.

INGALLS AN "AWFUL LIAR."

The father of the girl—the man who came to Swampscott and made the discovery through the police that Ingalls was a married man—would not talk at any length on the matter.

"Ingalls, Ingalls, I do not know any Ingalls. My son-in-law's name is Morecroft."

"How about 'Jimmy Rogers'?" asked the reporter, and the old man was silent. His head was bowed.

The girl herself, when herself, but consented to talk on the telephone. After denying that she was the girl she finally stated that "Ingalls was an awful liar. I have done nothing wrong. I am not to blame for anything."

BOY FORCED TO PEDDLE HOOTCH ON STREET

Stepfather, Sentenced to Four Months in House of Correction, Appeals

Forced on the streets by his stepfather to peddle "hooch" at $2 a bottle, and beaten for "holding out" $1 as commission, fourteen-year-old Peter P. Navisky of No. 90 Cambridge street, Charlestown, complained to the police after spending several nights on the Common.

As a result his stepfather, George Gutosky, was arraigned in Charlestown court today and sentenced to four months in the house of correction for keeping and exposing liquor with intent to sell. He was also fined $5 for the illegal use of a registered milk can. He appealed both sentence and bail was held in $500 for a hearing in September.

The boy was the chief witness in court against his step-father, and made a pitiful figure on the stand. His clothing was unkempt and ragged, corroborating his statement that he was afraid to go home.

Young Navisky told Judge Sullivan that his stepfather made whiskey in a still at their home, and then sent the boy out to peddle bottles in factories and other places where Gutosky was acquainted. The boy said that he received no pay for his work, with the result that he kept it for commissions. His stepfather then beat him severely and he ran away from home, sleeping on the Common.

Later he said he met Patrolman McGee, to whom he told his troubles, and the Gutosky home was then raided. The police seized a still, and paraphernalia for manufacturing liquor. The milk can was a part of this.

HARDING CHOSEN HEAD OF RED CROSS

Washington, Aug. 12.—President Harding was today officially notified of his election as President of the American Red Cross. It has been customary for the President of the United States to head this post, but for some reason Woodrow Wilson failed to tender his resignation to the Red Cross until about a week ago.

Athens, Aug. 12.—The Turkish Nationalists launched counter attacks in the Nikaia sector in an effort to halt the Greek advance, but were repulsed with heavy losses, according to an official communique today. The Turks in disorder retreated toward the north.

Corsets Attacked and Defended by Boston Authorities

Expert Claims They Make for Increased Health and Comfort

By HAZEL CANNING.

Cheer up, you worried ones—for the natural line, sylph or elephantine figure, sans corsets, is not going to displace woman's time worn institution of whale bone and lacings and steels.

In other words—the corset is not doomed. Recently L. T. Warner, corset manufacturer, made the statement, "The corset is necessary to woman's health and comfort," said he, "and the corset has held its own, against the modern, follow the figure, anti-corset crusade."

To which Dr. Lily Owen Burbank of Boston, lecturer for the State Department of Health, returned a "fiddle-dee-dee." "Corsets necessary? nonsense!" said Dr. Burbank. "Corsets are neither necessary for over, nor non-hygienic. I am are, why do you take 'em off when you are tired and put on something loose? Corsets weaken, they do not help."

Which pronouncements raised a storm of protest from certain ranks in Boston. Miss A. E. Huntington, corset composer and fitter, with scientific positiveness, the worth of the corset, its aid to health, its advantage to comfort, the salutary support it affords:

"MAKES FOR HEALTH."

"The right corsets, rightly fitted, made worn, never hurt any woman yet," said she. "Corsets make for health, else why do doctors send women, by the thousands, to us to save them from an operation? The old hour glass corset was bad, we all admit.

"But that is gone. Welcome, instead, the slender young woman, or the stately matron, in elastic corset, form fitting, no adjusted corset with supports where support is desired.

"And the woman, when in her own, the one meant for her, is comfortable, nicely adjusted in life and work, strengthened, properly poised, the corset will help her go. It means too much of well-being and support to the whole piece of modern woman."

Which is the authority's opinion. Now listen again to Dr. Burbank.

NUMBING, SAYS DOCTOR.

"When you're tired," says the doctor, "and warm and weary, you very first thing slip off your corset, and put on something loose. That's answer enough. For the corset is still it's heating. It numbs the muscles of back and abdomen. It supplies a false support for a support which normal nature should supply in normal muscles."

To which Miss Huntington provides the contrasting opinion.

"There is many a woman," says she, "to cannot get about at all with her corset left off. What about those women who wear a special corset for a floating kidney?

"What about those other women, whose weakened abdomen is held in place by the extra support of elastic banded corsets? What would these women do if compelled to go in the weak abandonment of their natural figure?"

FITTING ESSENTIAL.

"Now consider the question sanely. We live in a civilized day—over-civilized, perhaps. Nobody suffers from this more than modern woman. Therefore, for civilized women is being the fruits of civilization. Which, in one instance, is the correct corset, meant for her, adjusted to her. The reason why corsets have created enemies is because some women do not know how to buy their corsets, nor how to put them on.

"When you buy a pair of shoes you don't pass the money across the counter and take the shoes. You sit down and are fitted. To be fitted to a corset is even more necessary. Who puts her corset on in the morning, with no more ado, is not giving herself a fair chance. She merely provides for a waistline, in doing this. The correct way is to loosen the corset as widely as you can; then to lace the flesh in, after the body has been placed in the corset comfortably. Then get a brassiere. They make the most figure more slender, and sustain without restraining. They lend contour, and they never tax comfort.

So speaks Miss Huntington, and in so speaking, she tells how the corset should look, upon the woman dressed.

"The test of the corset is the appearance and the looks of the wearer," she adds. "When the natural lines of the woman are straightened, as she sits and stands with poise, then her corset is right. And, so acts the same advantage, in the great game of life, over hundreds of other women, poorly corseted, or not corseted at all."

THE MODERN CORSET

Above, a young woman illustrating the natural line of modern corset. It adapts itself to all body movements, she says, and illustrates how easy it is to stoop when fitted correctly. In circle, Dr. Lily Owen Burbank, announced foe of corsets.

ON TRIAL FOR NEGLECT, SAYS HE'S DIVORCED

Holmes Ordered, However, to Aid Child—New Wife Has Left Him

The involved matrimonial affairs of John T. Holmes of Providence proved even more complicated than expected when the case charging him with non-support of Mrs. Marian Holmes of South Braintree came up for hearing before Judge Avery in the Quincy district court today.

Mrs. Holmes had her husband arrested about a month ago on a neglect-of-family complaint. When Holmes was arraigned he startled the court and Mrs. Holmes by calmly announcing that he was not obligated to support her because he had obtained a decree from her in Providence, and produced a court decree to substantiate his claim.

At the request of Mrs. Holmes Judge Avery continued the case until today in order that Mrs. Holmes might have time in which to probe her husband's story.

She was presented in court today by Attorney John D. Smith, who added a fresh twist to the affair by announcing that the divorce was issued as Holmes had charged, but that immediately afterward Holmes had married a Miss Mary Preston, of Providence.

That marriage had not turned out well, said Smith, for less than a month later the second Mrs. Holmes left her husband, charging that the marriage was invalid as it had been contracted prior to the time limit set by the Rhode Island divorce law for remarriage.

She has therefore brought suit to have the ceremony annulled.

Judge Avery ruled that he had no right to compel Holmes to pay for the support of his divorced wife either if the divorce had been obtained without her knowledge, but changed the content and fined Holmes $200 for neglect of his four-year-old son. Charles Fisher, probation officer, with the understanding that he pay $6 weekly for the care of the child, through the court probation officer.

WILL TRY TO GET ELOPING SON PROSECUTED

Mrs. Mary Kelley of Medford Says Vincent, 19, Represented Himself as 24

Mrs. Mary Kelley of No. 22 Wheeler avenue, Medford, appeared today she would ask the Cambridge city authorities to prosecute on a perjury charge, her 19-year-old son, Vincent, who obtained a license to wed Miss Catherine Cleary, 24 years old of No. 361 Columbia street, Cambridge.

Mrs. Kelley declared her son in making application, gave his age as 24 years and his address as No. 46 Saville street, Cambridge. Both of these statements the lad's mother says are untrue.

Accompanied by Mrs. Cleary, Mrs. Kelley said she would visit the Cambridge city clerk today to urge that criminal action be started against her son.

After getting a marriage license the couple are said to have obtained a waiver on the five-day law, and are believed to have been married by a justice of the peace.

Young Kelley took his bride to his mother's home, but instead of being received with open arms and parental blessings, the door was virtually slammed in their faces, and his bride then dropped out of sight and are supposed to have gone into hiding. Mrs. Cleary has insisted on saying she believed her daughter had been married since last April.

TWO SOUGHT IN DEATH OF PRIEST

Woman and Man Believed to Know Details—Discoverer of Body Held

By Associated Press.

San Francisco, Aug. 12—Search went forward today for two persons, a woman and a man, who are believed to know how the body of Rev. Father Patrick Heslin, Catholic priest, came to its shallow grave on the desolate coast south of San Francisco.

The man is as yet unnamed, the woman is called Dolly Monson, mentioned by William A. Hightower as having given him the information on which he based his successful search for the priest's body.

Police officers frankly said they believed that in Hightower, held in the Hall of Justice here, they had the leader character in the affair and indicated that filing of formal charges against him was imminent.

Captain of Detectives Duncan Matheson said that he did not believe that Hightower was the man who called for Father Heslin and took him away under pressure that he was to visit a "dying man."

"We expect to locate that man and have him under arrest before tonight," he said.

Earth Passed Through Tail of Comet Last Monday

By Associated Press.

Heidelberg, Aug. 12.—Announcement is made at the Koenigstuhl observatory that the earth passed through the tail of a comet on the night of August 8.

At sunset last Sunday, a bright object was observed near the sun by W. W. Campbell, director of Lick observatory. It was described as brighter than Venus, and was located 3 degrees east and 1 degree south of the sun.

Five persons saw the celestial object, and reports from the observatory indicated that experts there believed it might be the nucleus of a bright comet. It would appear probable that this identification was correct, in view of the foregoing report from Germany.

SO-CALLED BOY ELUDES ANGRY 'FIANCEE'

"Jack Brown" Admits He Is a She, but Disappears Before Mary Gets There

New York, Aug. 12.—"Oh, Mary, Mary, why did you do this thing?"

The speaker was Mrs. Schimeck, mother of Carolyn Schimeck, the girl who for years had been employed by various firms under the name of Jack Brown, and whose identity was made public through the determination of pretty Mary Hodowonetz to be vindicated in what she considered an injustice resultant from Carolyn's having wooed her and promised marriage while masquerading in masculine attire.

When Mrs. Schimeck asked the question, Mary had just appeared at the door of the Schimeck home at Kingston. She went there after having paid repeated visits to Kutcher Bros.' farm at Monticello, where her feminine swain has been working as a man for the past several months.

Although Mary and Deputy Sheriff Walsh had searched the farm and its environs for hours, Jack had not been discovered. It was not until late at night, long after Mary was in bed and asleep at the Monticello Inn, that Constable Walsh made a trip to the farm, at Mr. Kutcher's request, and found the so-called boy asleep in the men's bunk house.

To him and Mr. Kutcher the girl, Carolyn Schimeck, admitted her identity, and said she had been posing as a boy for years. In his indignation Mr. Kutcher informed her that she must leave his employ. He arranged for the sheriff to return and escort her from the place. When Walsh arrived it was found that the girl, known as Jack Brown, had slipped away during the night no one knew where. So Mary went to Kingston. But Jack was not there.

"I don't want to arrest her," Mary told Carolyn's mother. "I just want to talk to her."

BROTHERHOODS AWAIT SHEPPARD'S RETURN

Cleveland, Aug. 12.—The "Big Four" Railroad Brotherhoods will not determine their course of action, on the refusal of the executives of Eastern railroads to grant their demands, before next week, Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and spokesman for the organization, declared today. L. E. Sheppard, head of the order of railway conductors, is in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and a course of action will not be mapped out before his return, it was said.

Fresh From Paris

PARIS, France.

THE cape costume, introduced in the Spring for formal street wear, is now entering the world of sports clothes. For country club days it has many attractions. A well known couturier on the Rue de la Paix has just made the two distinguished models, shown above, for a bridal trousseau. The design of the two costumes is the same, but the fabrics are different. The chemise dress, straight and girlishly simple and pointed shoulder cape are of fawn color gabardine, the cape being lined with green and fawn plaid serge. Novel points are the cutout skirt and neck lines of the dress and cape.

IN the second illustration the plaid serge is used for the dress and cape, the lining of the cape being of the fawn color gabardine.

FOUR KILLED AS TRAIN CRASHES INTO AUTO

Haverhill Family Were Returning From Funeral in New Hampshire

Alton, N. H., Aug. 12.—Three were almost instantly killed and another was so seriously hurt that she died today, when a Boston & Maine passenger train bound from Dover to Lakeport, struck an automobile at Durgin's Crossing, a mile and a half south of the Alton depot.

The dead:

George W. White, fifty-four, No. 156 Essex street, Haverhill, Mass.

Mrs. Clara White, his wife, same address.

Mrs. Alma Clancy, a daughter, Fourth avenue and Main street, Haverhill, Mass.

Mrs. Paul Reynolds of Laconia, N. H.

Little is known of how the catastrophe occurred. The crossing is a blind one.

It is believed White either thought he had plenty of time to get over the crossing ahead of the fast Dover-Lakeport express, or was entirely oblivious of the train's approach.

The train hurled the machine and its occupants in all directions.

The three members of the White family died while on the way to the hospital.

Mrs. Reynolds, who was a daughter of White, died this morning at the Rochester Hospital. Physicians found that she had sustained a fractured skull, two broken legs and internal injuries. She was the mother of five children.

Caruso Memorial Candle Will Last 5,000 Years

By Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 12.—An eighteen-foot candle that can be burned on every All Soul's Day for 5,000 years is being made here as a memorial to Enrico Caruso from the inmates of an orphan home to which the Metropolitan opera star contributed $10,000 a year for many years. It will be placed in the Church of the Madonna of Pompeii at Naples, Italy.

Antonio Ajello, maker of the candle, has erected a derrick in his shop by means of which the candle is dipped thrice daily into boiling tallow. It will be completed in ten weeks, and will weigh about 1,000 pounds. Mr. Ajello has figured that the candle would burn continuously for thirteen years and seven months.

"DEAROS" WILL BID FOR SWIM HONORS

North End Girls Confident of Prizes in Boston American Race

"Dearo" is a name given to those who were at one time or another residents of the North End. The appellation still sticks to habitues of that section. In fact, the mermaids who dip in the briny deep at the North End Beach, off Commercial street, delight in using the term "dearo" in referring to the girls from that beach who are to take part in the water carnival and races of one and one-half miles and 200 feet to be conducted by the Boston American in the Charles River Basin, Saturday afternoon, August 27.

A well-known athlete, who was born and reared in that end of the city, coined the expression "dearo," which was later used in a mayoralty campaign, meaning "dear old North Ender." The girl "dearos" of today are anxious to uphold tradition, thereby capturing major honors in the big race, so they told the Swimming Editor.

Many girls at the North End Beach are already enrolling for the race and it is their belief that many more will enter before closing time. These girls are strong and rugged and have wonderful staying power in propelling their bodies through the water. All feel certain of winning laurels in the Boston American swim and predict a big attendance of "dearos" among spectators.

All "dearos" interested in the prizes to be awarded winners in the race are invited to view them at the Boylston street office of the Boston Daily and Sunday Advertiser in the Little Building.

John A. Lane of the Columbia road gymnasium, Dorchester, will start the race.

Plenty for lunch

A fresh, juicy California Bartlett Pear, a few crackers or cookies, a nourishing drink—and you've given the kiddies a well-rounded lunch.

Feeding children is always a problem—and especially in summer. But neither you, nor they, can go wrong on these fresh, luscious pears. Because they are just-ripe, mellow and even-textured, they are more easily digested than many raw fruits. What's more, nutrition tests show that California Bartlett Pears have more actual food value than almost any other fresh fruit. Also, they are rich in vitamines—that essential, health-giving element you hear so much about nowadays.

So keep the fruit bowl handy. Let the youngsters eat to their fill. They'll suffer less from the heat; and they'll be less apt to break out with heat rash and other summery symptoms—thanks to the natural, cooling fruit juice of California Bartlett Pears.

NEW ENGLAND'S CROPS BELOW NORMAL

Maine Falls From First to Fourth Place in Apples—Potatoes Show Loss

Maine has fallen from first to fourth place in apple crop prospects of the country because of the July drought, V. A. Sanders, New England crop statistician of the Federal Bureau of Markets, announced today.

Maine's condition now is 78, with New Hampshire 49, Vermont 36, Massachusetts 28, Rhode Island 22 and Connecticut 33, Sanders said. New England's commercial apple crop was forecast as 1,959,800 barrels, against 1,326,000 last year. Prospects are best in the northwestern section of the country.

The Aroostook, Maine, potato crop is not quite up to normal, he said, being 82 per cent, of normal against 94 last year and 87 five year average 90 per cent. The crop is uneven throughout New England with some blight recorded. Present potato conditions in the country are best in Colorado and New England.

The New England tobacco crop has made a good growth, but frequent hail storms lately have done heavy damage in limited areas, mainly in Connecticut. Connecticut Valley onions have been cut short with but little over 50 per cent. of normal growth, by the recent hot, humid weather.

July showers caused a generally rapid gain in hay throughout New England, except in the dry northern sections. Little better than 70 per cent. of a full crop was harvested. Oats gained slightly in July but are still below average. Corn is a good crop in New England.

KING ALBERT GIVEN REBUFF AT DEAUVILLE

Paris, Aug. 12.—Acting under instructions that royalty be shown no favors, attendants, in the presence of hundreds of bejewelled woman and smartly-dressed men, refused admittance to the Casino at Deauville to King Albert of Belgium. The King was improperly attired. He had assumed that a business suit and straw hat would be the correct thing at "democratic Deauville."

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS

WHEN I saw the Cosmopolitan picture, "The Passionate Pilgrim," some weeks ago I remember being struck with the particular villainousness of Claire Whitney as the scheming, jealous sister. In my mind thereafter Claire Whitney meant but one thing—the Perfect Cat.

I met the Perfect Cat at Keith's yesterday and was more than pleasantly surprised. She's not a cat; she's not even the "heavy" that producers invariably want to cast her for; she's the sort who would be picked for the straightforward role of the heroine.

"I don't like 'heavy' roles," she argued indignantly, "but I can't seem to get out of playing them. I was given the cat sister in 'The Passionate Pilgrim' through a fluke and now I'm being to live it down. Mr. Vignola, the director, saw me playing on the stage in New York and wanted me for his picture. He didn't tell me that the role was and I didn't read the script. All I knew was that I should have one of the most equal parts with Rubye de Remer and Frankie Lee.

"Later he wanted me to play the lead in another picture for Cosmopolitan but when he put it up to the powers that be they shook their heads with me. As cat I had been and a cat I must remain. Just because I scratched once, I was to keep on scratching.

"As a matter of fact, there is a good side to the 'heavy' roles. I find there is more chance for acting and usually a stronger characterization to give than I might have as a clinging vine. Oh, but the drawback! The public won't believe that I can be nice.

"At present we are considering a screen comedy engagement." The "we" constitutes Miss Whitney and her husband, Robert Emmett Keane, with whom she is appearing in a sketch at Keith's. "Several times we have been approached with the suggestion that we start a series of two-reelers on the order of the Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew comedies. In fact, we have just made one. I"—here she looked around to see if anyone could overhear—"I wrote it myself! If it 'goes over' we'll undoubtedly try some more."

Miss Whitney is enrolled among the ranks of players who are not content with working all day under Kleig lights, but needs must carry on a stage career as well. All the time she has been playing in films she has appeared on Broadway. Life has for several years been divided between screen make-up and footlight make-up. Regarding the question of so many players deserting the films for personal contact with their audiences, Miss Whitney feels that the present drop in salaries is largely to blame.

"We have been paid highly," she said, "just as the press agents and newspapers have always declared. But when one considers the amount of money that pictures bring in, there's not the slightest reason to believe that we have been over-paid. Salaries have been cut appallingly. I was asked by a New York producer to play leads in a number of pictures this coming Winter. When he told me what he'd pay me, I shouted with glee. It was a joke; but not so much of a joke when he explained that it was what he pays his other players.

"There's no reason for this slump. Pauline Frederick gets $7,500 a week. Elsie Ferguson was under contract for $6,000 a week. Those are actual facts. Consider, for instance, that Miss Ferguson plays—or rather works—six weeks on a picture, and working in a studio is hard and entails trying circumstances. When the film is released it plays, not for a few months, but for a few years, and often is appearing in several hundred theatres on one evening. Think of the money it is bringing in to its producers. Why shouldn't she get a fair percentage of the receipts? She's the one the people are paying to see. Meanwhile until the complete adjustment of salaries, players will fill out their engagements with stage appearances."

And meanwhile, we're going to watch what Claire Whitney does on the screen with anxiety. She may develop into a splendid comedienne; she may be a highly acceptable leading lady; but she is altogether too perfect a Cat to give up that "line," for it needs clever actresses as much, and possibly a bit more, than do the others.

NO ROMANCE THERE, SAYS STAR.

WHEN it was learned in theatrical and motion picture circles that Crane Wilbur has just been divorced from his wife, Florence Dunmar, a Los Angeles girl, people at once jumped to the conclusion that he would marry Martha Mansfield, the Solnick star. He and Miss Mansfield are headliners on Keith's circuit, appearing in a crook satire, "Right or Wrong."

Wilbur was approached on the subject but gave a firm denial. "I haven't even Miss Mansfield's telephone number," he asserted. "It's simply a case of meeting and parting at the stage door."

IT'S A GIRL!

THERE is the greatest joy in the Niblo household these days following the arrival of Miss Niblo. Fred Niblo, who has been working day and night on the big Douglas Fairbanks feature, "The Three Musketeers," declares that even at the age of one day his daughter shows signs of acting ability and is planning her stage—or screen—debut.

MAY RAISE TAX EXEMPTION TO $2,500

House Committee Considering Further Relief for Heads of Families

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 12.—An increase in the income tax exemption from $2,000 to $2,500 for the heads of families was considered today by the House Ways and Means committee.

The additional relief from tax burdens was urged by Representatives Bacharach, New Jersey, and Green, Iowa, in addition to the increase from $200 to $400 exemption for each minor child and dependent. The latter item has been approved by the committee.

It was urged that the increased exemptions were necessary to meet increased living costs of the ordinary family and could be made without forcing a certain treasury deficit. They would meet the Democratic opposition to the tax revision which is claiming that most tax reductions made have been for the benefit of the rich.

SEEING THINGS! This little mirror of Angeline Irigoyens of Los Angeles, Cal., has other and more interesting uses—it holds just one drink of anything—milk, tea, soda water. (W.W.)

OH, GOSH! The King of Spain is being kissed—and the Queen is looking on. It is just this sort of subserviency that "puts the skids" under the thrones of Europe. (U. & U.)

SEA CHERUBS! Collette Lyons (left) and Edith Phillips of 984 Washington St., Dorchester, are all excited over the Boston American's swimming carnival. It's gonna be a great affair. Better join, girls!

BLOOMING CHIC! Smart little bloomers attached to the skirt is the new word for Milady Fashion for Fall wear. This gown of brocaded satin, despite its fleecy appearance, is warm and comfortable. (K. & H.)

PURITANICAL! Violet Inez Melcher, of 30 Blance St., Dorchester, and her cute pony. She is said to be the youngest known living descendant of Miles Standish.

LINKING THE WORLD! The first unit of the world's largest radio station (right), situated at Port Jefferson, L. I., is now nearing completion and will be ready for use early next month. Twelve steel towers, each 400 feet high, comprise first unit of station, which will have appearance of giant wheel when finished. Circumference of towers will be 3 miles. Diagram below, at right, shows how the various units will cover the world. (U. & U.)

HORRORS! Brighton Beach, N. Y., bathing nymphs are "hitting the pipe" now. Florence Shraman says that it is refreshing after a long swim. Boston girls have better taste.

JOHN PRINCE (right), richest blacksmith in U. S., and his $8,000 smile. Eight diamonds set in his teeth make him a walking gem store. (K. & H.)

A POND LILY! Fresh water beauties seem to be forging to the fore, although the sea nymphs are holding their own. Miss Gertrude Anton of 107 Hastings St., Springfield, is awarded $5 for this photo. We are eager to receive photos in the sea beauty test, but we must insist that the pictures be clear and suitable for newspaper reproduction. All photos will be returned if a self-addressed envelope is included. Where are the northern New England beauties. Pictures have been received from there, but they were too dark and unclear.

GEE WILLIKINS, WHAT FUN! Kiddies make themselves interesting toys and at the same time lay a foundation for genius in some manual trade on Adams St., Dorchester. School cassists of an open lot. From the Mary Hemenway School. Photo shows, left to right, Thomas Flanagan, Instructor F. R. Stewart, Thomas Hodgens and Albert Skenberg. (United.)

PIONEER! Otto Lilienthal, inventor and pioneer in aviation, met his death just 25 years ago while perfecting one of his machines. Lilienthal's first conception of an air vehicle was to have the wings shaped like those of a bat. He placed the machine (shown above) about his body, jumped off a hill and glided through space to the ground below. During one of these experiments he was killed. As a tribute to his inventive genius this model was placed in a Berlin (Germany) Museum. (W. W.)

PALS! Cy De Vry and Mary are closer than glue and almost any evening they can be seen at the Selig Zoo in Los Angeles "swapping" yarns and enjoying a quiet smoke. They borrow each other's tobacco 'n' everythin', Mary is shown giving Cy a light. (Int.)

FUTILE PLEA! Olivia M. Stone, who is "glad" she killed Lawyer Kinkead, calls from behind the bars in Brooklyn to the "spirit" of her victim to aid her. She wants him as her phantom lawyer at the trial. (U. & H.)

VIOLENT! Japan, if this photo can be accepted as proof, has her labor troubles, too. It shows the police seizing an alleged radical during a labor demonstration at Uyeno Park, Tokio. Trade unionism and organized labor are new to Japan, but the workers are rapidly grasping the idea. It required five policemen to quell this fiery orator. (U. & H.)

BREEZES BLOW! The Grebe, America's entrant in the six-metre yacht race at Ryde, England, was one of the only winners for Yankee Land. This staunch little craft, shown crossing the finishing line, outsailed everything on the water of her type. This match was part of the British-American cup races. (U. & H.)

END BENNET, the screen star and wife of Fred Niblo, is the proud mother of a future Ethel Barrymore. Both doing nicely, thank you, in Los Angeles.

Connolly Tells of Fate Meted Out to Informers Among Constabulary

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY,
Famous New England Author and Journalist.

Not all the young Irish lads fell victims to this training, but when they did not they did not advance far; but many of them did fall.

They had in the R. I. C. what the people over there call "Crime Sergeants."

Where they didn't find something wrong, and the Crown demanded, they invented crimes, and framed the guilt of them on people who were always, as it happened, not in favor of English government in Ireland.

It was a most perfect, diabolical system under the same government which produced a Pigott to forge letters intended to ruin Parnell; which produced an army officer to murder the pacifist Skeffington and place a forged incriminating letter in the pocket of Skeffington after murdering him; these and scores of cases as bad or worse.

The most innocent Irish people were tried, condemned, put in jail or deported—frequently sent to the gallows—on evidence furnished by these "crime sergeants." Sergeant Sheridan, who, after trumping up the evidence in a dozen criminal cases, and in these cases securing the conviction of his victims, was a fine sample of a crime sergeant.

He was finally shown up in all his villainy, but released without punishment by the English government. There have been many worse than Sheridan in Ireland in the last few years, because never before were Irish patriots so near to possible independence, and the English government never so much in need of getting rid of troublesome Irishmen.

After the Easter week uprising they were particularly busy inventing crimes and convicting innocent Irish people of them, and so affording London the basis on which to publish again to the world the "proof" of the infamous character of these Irish people that the beneficent English government is always trying to help, but "who absolutely—absolutely—refuse to be helped!"

After the rising in Dublin in 1916 nearly 3 rishmen of standing were tried, condemned and executed; hundreds were deported; many others were put in jail. The evidence of the guilt of most of the convicted men was furnished by members of the R. I. C.

When later the Irish Republican government began to function they found themselves hampered by the work of spies; many of these ones when they ran them down proved to be also members of the R. I. C.

EXTENSIVE SPY SYSTEM.

Now the British government maintains the most extensive—and expensive—spy system in the world. In Ireland she had them planted everywhere; in every trade and profession, in every walk in life, in every little village; and she paid them well for their work.

Now, no little country the size of Ireland can hope to fight long against England with spies on its "inside"; and most of these R. I. C. spies being on the inside through their family, church, club or other affiliations, they were the most dangerous spy of all.

Irish Republican leaders declared that they would not stand for the Irish spy, and especially warned some people that they had good reason to suspect. The spy work continued, and so one day the I. R. A. made a beginning. They got the proof of a Dublin R. I. C. man's guilt; he had caused forty or fifty men to be hanged or deported.

They warned him to get out. Feeling secure in his crown protection, he did not get out. Two appointed I. R. A. men stepped up to him in a street in Dublin and shot him dead.

There was another one who had sent many innocent men up. They warned him to get out. He did not get out. Two appointed I. R. A. men stepped up to him in a Dublin street and shot him dead. They shot more R. I. C. men who had given evidence, much of it false. Remember that these men were executed under authority of the Irish Republic against the paid armed men of an invading enemy.

Beal-Morgan Nuptials Held

MRS. THOMAS G. STEVENSON

Mrs. Thomas G. Stevenson is of the Boston colony summering at the North Shore. Mrs. Stevenson, with her young son, is at Hamilton.

By BETTY ALDEN.

One of the most important mid-Summer nuptials took place when Miss May Lefferts Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Morgan of New York, became the bride of Thomas Prince Beal, Jr., of Boston, son of Thomas P. Beal, president of the Second National Bank. The ceremony took place Thursday afternoon in Shelburne, Vt., where the bride's parents have a magnificent Summer estate on Lake Champlain, and was performed by Right Rev. George Y. Biles, D. D., Episcopal coadjutor bishop of Vermont.

The bride wore a gown of white net and lace and bridal veil of tulle which fell back in many folds. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley and orchids. William DeFord Beal of Boston was best man for his brother, and the ushers were all from New York.

Mrs. Morgan is a graduate of the Misses Masters' School at Dobb's Ferry-on-the-Hudson. During the World War she took a special course in nursing at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston. The bridegroom, who is a Harvard graduate, class of 1916, has holdings in the Somerset, Union and Tennis and Racquet clubs of Boston, the Harvard Club in New York and the Essex County Club in Manchester. In the Winter Mr. Beal and his bride will live at No. 47 Lawrence road, Chestnut Hill, where they will be at home after October 1.

Along Long Island Sound at Southampton and along the South Shore, North Scituate, today stands out as one of the most "charitable" of the entire season. All Southampton is turning out for the Village Street Fair which takes place there today and which annually causes many flutters of preparation among those in charge of the event.

I hear that the matrons who head the various committees bid fair to outdo one another in originality and elaborate preparation. The committee in charge of decorations has gone to no end of trouble to make Agawam Park, where the fair takes place, as attractive as possible.

A huge dance pavilion were general dancing may be enjoyed in the evening, has been built about a giant willow tree, whose branches will be hung with colored lanterns and scores of large brilliantly plumed birds. The cafe and tea room, surrounded by great Japanese umbrellas, have been so placed that the patrons can watch the dancers.

The history of the erection of the pavilion deserves a line or two in itself, for several decidedly prominent matrons, including Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt 2nd, the last few days have been hard at work painting the railing of the pavilion a bright red and putting a coat of white fencing bout between Dr. Ernest Low on some big tubs in which orange trees have been placed. These well-known personages, garbed in long linen smocks and armed with paint brushes, seemed to be enjoying themselves enormously.

A novel feature for the fair is the Gignaux of the New York Athletic Club and James Murray of Columbia University. The fact that Albert Sterner is to paint silouhettes at the fair has caused such keen interest among the Summer colony that enough advance orders have already been placed with the artist to keep him busy for the entire afternoon. The proceeds of the charity affair will be turned over to the Southampton Hospital.

I have already written at length about the vaudeville and minstrel show which takes place tonight at the Hatherly Country Club of North Scituate for the benefit of the Sunlight Repair Shop. One of the features of the program is a number from "The Poor Little Rita Girl," which is to conclude with a minuet. The young women taking part and their partners will be garbed in the true style of 1865.

Messrs. De Ford Beal and Dudley Pickman, Jr., of the Beverly Cove colony have offered silver cups for prizes in the Monserrat Golf Club annual tennis tournament this week.

Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer was among the guests at a luncheon given by Mrs. Edson Bradley in Newport for Dr. and Mrs. Preston Pope Satterwhite of New York. Others who attended the luncheon were Princess Lubomirska, wife of the Polish minister, and Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Murchia of Mount Vernon street number among the American tourists stopping at Paris.

BEVERLY FARMS CHURCH SALE IS HUGE SUCCESS

Beverly, Aug. 12.—At the St. John's Episcopal Church, Beverly Farms, grounds the fashionables along the North Shore contributed toward making successful one of the outdoor sales given by the women's auxiliary of the church. Members of the Girls' Club were the waitresses. More than 500 persons attended the affair. The committee in charge were: Mrs. J. L. Thorndike, Miss Alice Thorndike, Mrs. Alvin Sortwell, Mrs. N. Simpkins, Jr., Mrs. Edward Campbell and Mrs. Stephen Hutchinson; fancy table, Mrs. Harcourt Amory, Mrs. C. D. Walker, Mrs. Ernest Townsend; candy table, Miss Katherine Coolidge, Misses Helen and Priscilla Rhodes, Mrs. T. R. Jackson, Mrs. Walker H. Newton; children's table, Mrs. A. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. G. H. Thorndike; tea table, Mrs. Walter Hunnewell, Mrs. N. S. Simpkins, Jr., Miss K. Lane and Miss Betty Beal; rummage table, the Misses Amory, Mary Frank and Mary Frankz; vegetables and flowers, Mrs. H. L. Mason, Mrs. R. W. Means, Mrs. Gerald Hramwell and Mrs. Charles Hodges; woman's auxiliary table, Mrs. James Stevens and members of the auxiliary.

CHINA MUST GET FAIR TREATMENT SAYS HAPGOOD

Success of Conference Depends on Asiatic Policy, Writer Asserts

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.
Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, Aug. 12.—When the International Conference meets at Washington, on November 11, the reality of its success will depend appreciably on the treatment accorded to China.

If, as General Smuts, says, the problems of the future are those of the Pacific, then the smooth working of a world policy in the Pacific must depend on the satisfaction and stability of the most important nation in eastern Asia.

The conference, to be sure, began with a more limited idea. Senator Borah still believes it was a mistake for the administration to ride-track its plan of a disarmament conference of the three naval powers by making it part of an ambitious plan to accomplish what Versailles failed to bring about.

As this brilliant Senator puts it in conversation, he cares more for what governments do than for what they are going to do. He would trust more in an actual scaling down of naval programs by the three countries concerned than he would in complicated treaties.

DEWEY'S WORD IMPORTANT.

In the same conversation Senator Borah referred to the reports of Professor Dewey about British concessions in South China. Dewey's evidence is of first-class importance, and he is one of the men whose presence in Washington next November is imperative, if the point of view of China is to be understood.

Unfortunately the official mind seldom takes kindly to the enlightened liberal and independent expert student. It is almost as difficult to conceive of Messrs. Harding, Hughes and Hoover calling Professor Dewey into their inner councils, as they map out in advance the American policy for Asia, as it would be to imagine Lloyd George, Curzon and Churchill insisting on having Mr. Brailsford in their entourage.

Fortunately one at least of the British officials who will be here is the Canadian premier Meighan, who put his foot down at the London conference and declared that if Great Britain renewed the treaty with Japan, Canada would legislate herself out of the alliance.

Another citizen of the British Empire, whose presence may be looked for at the November is General Smuts, and if he dos come there will be a strong personality working against the rigidities of officialdom, full of imagination, full of sympathy, full of faith in what is right.

China herself will presumably be represented, among others, by Mr. Wellington Koo, who not only knows this country well, but who has carried off the lion's share of glory for landing China in the sacred precincts of the supreme council. Mr. Koo can be trusted to find his way around Pennsylvania avenue without being lost or kidnaped.

It is easy to say that China must loom large if the decisions are to promise permanence. It is not so easy to say how she is to be treated, since she is so far from being herself a political unit.

The political situation changes so fast that no one can say what it will be in November. A brilliant young friend of mine, now in China, writes to me:

"The two most prominent things in China today are: First, interest in England's decision about the Japanese treaty, which is immense, and second, the practically complete disintegration of government, some young men accepting a temporary break up as inevitable and not wholly undesirable."

You have, then, a power without whom no settlement can mean much, and yet with whom a settlement is rendered nearly impossible by lack of political coherence.

JAP ALLIANCE MUST GO.

Certain things, however, are clear. The Anglo-Japanese alliance is an unsatisfactory to China as it is to us and to Canada. It must be given up. The statesman who can think up an arrangement that will save Japan's face and give her some place for emigration, while at the same time making China feel that she is to be allowed to function as a free and important power, will have taken the only possible step toward lessening the dangers that lie in eastern Asia.

The importance of China's resources to the needs of Japan and of the western world cannot be left out of account. But no permanent progress will have been made if these needs are allowed to take precedence of the freedom of China.

NEW ENGLAND TITLES AT STAKE TONIGHT WHEN ARMORY HOLDS SHOW

By JACK CONWAY.

Two New England champions will toss their well known crowns into the ring tonight at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building. Dan Dowd, heavyweight title holder, will permit Ted Jamieson to take pot shots at his laurels, while Johnny Clinton will defend his lightweight championship in a quarrel with Jimmy Fruzetti of Brockton.

Dowd and Clinton, the wise ones tell us, will go to the post favorites. South Boston Dan may rule a ten to eight choice, while if Clifton is ten to nine favorite he will have cause to give three cheers.

Inasmuch as this has been a great year for the short anders, Monte Jamieson and Fruzetti are very liable to upset the grand old dope and parade down the home stretch victors.

* * *

The fans are all eager to get a glimpse at Dowd. There was once a time when the New England heavyweight champion wasn't the greatest drawing card in the world. Then he started fighting like a regular ring fool and punched out a victory over Pat McCarthy. This win caused him to take a trip to New York where he secured a match with Captain Bob Roper, conqueror of Bob Martin. Dowd beat Roper soundly to fifteen rounds. He later fought a draw with Gene Tunney. As Daniel also has a draw to his credit with Bill Brennan, he has no real occasion to fear any man in his boxing division with the exception of Jack Dempsey and Harry Willis.

Jamieson plans to upset the Dowd dirge this p. m. Ted says Wolf Larson was picked to defeat him in their first start. He points to the fact he gave Larsen a severe setback and then repeated the performance later.

* * *

Jimmy Fruzetti will make a gallant bid to win back his title as New England lightweight champion when he collides with the ruggedly handsome Johnny Clinton. When this pair met at the Grand Opera House last Winter, Fruzetti was perched at the head of his class. Clinton gave the dope a stiff jolt and battered his way to a close victory.

* * *

Fruzetti didn't believe Clinton had the margin. He made several attempts to get a return bout without success which caused many fans to believe that Clinton realized he had been fortunate to get the verdict in the Armory A. A. finally made the booking.

* * *

There will also be a couple of eights. Young Kansas of Providence will oppose Young Bova of the North End, while Mack Murphy of Atlantic will try conclusions with Tony Julian of Brockton.

* * *

As there will be popular assessments for this show, everybody should be happy.

* * *

Al Shubert, New England featherweight champion, will risk his title in a ten-round bout with K. O. Christy Elkins of the South End at New Bedford tonight. This tussle should prove a torrid affair. Shubert, a veteran of the ring game, is one of the most satisfactory performers in this part of the country. His aggressive and punching power have enabled him to crush the fighting spirit of most of his opponents.

Elkins packs a haymaker in his left which gives him a chance of victory. As Shubert fights in a crouching style, Elkins will be able to rip his left hand uppercut to the jaw. Charley Mealey says the New England title will change hands if the South End boy is able to connect with one of these wallops.

Shubert realizes the importance of the tussle and will be at his best when he enters the ring.

Mickey Kirst of St. Paul has hit the battle trail. This hard hitting little warrior, who is under the direction of Kid Block, is seeking a match with George (Kid) Lee of Providence, who won over Billy Cahill the other night. Kirst battled Lee at Worcester, last Spring. And the St. Paul boy won. Mickey now wants to repeat his victory. Block avers that his protege is in splendid condition and that he has the ability to stop Lee. Furthermore Block is prepared to post a substantial forfeit to bind to be on hand.

Block also said a few kind words about Tommy McFarland, Terry Brooks, Billy Meyers and Al Girard, who are also operating under his banner.

Solly Snyder writes that he is now managing Battling Thomas and that he would like to sign the new protege for tussles with any of the New England welterweights. Thomas is a fast, rugged fellow and always seems to give satisfaction.

* * *

Louis Rogash, Bridgeport, Ct. welterweight, may get another chance to meet Champion Jack Britton in a Boston ring if he wins the decision over Johnny Tillman of St. Paul. Rogash and Tillman meet next Tuesday night at Mechanics Building under the direction of Commercial A. C.

* * *

Matchmaker McKirdy is making an effort to secure Britton to meet the winner. Prospects of meeting Britton are nothing new to either Rogash or Tillman. The last named already has mixed it with the champion on six different occasions while Rogash travelled fifteen rounds to a draw with Britton last Spring in Bridgeport.

* * *

Tex Rickard tried to tie up a title match between Rogash and Britton for Madison Square Garden last Winter. Britton turned down the offer. Rickard offered him $40,000 to meet Rogash.

* * *

Rogash has beaten about every welterweight contender in the country. Paul Doyle, Marty Cross and K. O. Laughlin lost decisions to him while Soldier Bartfield was knocked out in three rounds.

* * *

Tillman has met Jack Malone four times, each winning two bouts. Bryan Downey and Tillman have met three times, Tendler and Leonard have each met Tillman in three bouts.

* * *

Sailor Darden, who recently defeated Panama Joe Gans will meet Irish Paddy Flynn in a ten-round bout. Flynn recently went fifteen rounds with Jimmy Gibbons. Paddy Rogash will meet Young Gibbs and Joe Russell of Newport will meet Billy Blakeley of Charlestown.

Reservations may be procured at Room 12, 28 School street. There will be popular assessments.

EDDIE MAHAN TO FACE SOUTH BOSTON CASEYS

Next Tuesday night at the C. J. Lee playgrounds, South Boston, the Natick Town Team will oppose the Pere Marquette Council, K. of C. The visitors' lineup will include such stars as Quinn of Montreal, Howard of Marlborough, Quirke of Albany, Hickey of Boston College, McNally recently signed by Cleveland, and Eddie Mahan of Harvard, former All-American halfback.

This game will be known as McCourt Day and the Knights of Columbus will honor their star pitcher, who is the best pitcher developed in South Boston in years.

McCourt, who is but nineteen years old, has won eleven of his fourteen games, and has victories over such fast teams as the Boston Post Office, the Boston All Stars, Standish Club, James E. Hayes K. of C., Boston Scholastic All Stars and the Trogans of Newport, R. I. The game is scheduled to start at 8 p. m. and a big crowd is expected to post a substantial forfeit to bind to be on hand.

BOSTON TENNIS STAR IN FINAL TEST TODAY

R. Norris Williams Meets William Johnston in Big Seabright Match

By JACK VEIOCK.

New York, Aug. 12.—Billy Johnston, veteran California net star and erstwhile National champ, looked like to push out of the season among American tennis players.

Strung along close to Johnston and showing form that recalls his brilliance in championships days is R. Norris Williams of Boston, who was scheduled to clash with the Californian in the final at Seabright today.

These two players, if the form they have shown in the Eastern invitation classics to date can be taken as a criterion, will be the kingpins of the American Davis cup team.

The committee selected by the United States Lawn Tennis Association to name the defending team was slated to announce its selection today and it was a practical certainty that Johnston and Williams would be named, together with William T. Tilden and Watson M. Washburn.

Young Vincent Richards, who recently scored such a brilliant victory over Tilden and later lowered Williams' colors, had a chance to make the Davis Cup team through defeat at the hands of the astonishing Johnston at Seabright yesterday.

The playing of the young Yonkers flash has been exceptionally brilliant at times, but he has not been consistently good.

Tilden's play, too, has been away off color. Before he left Europe he went stale as a result of being in training too long and he has by no means into form. The rest he is taking from participation in the tennis singles events is expected to do him a world of good.

With the women's national championship scheduled for Forest Hills, L. I., next week, the crowning of Mlle. Lenglen and the winding up of the Davis Cup ties just in the offing, tennis will hold the centre of the sport stage during the remainder of August and most of September.

The men's national doubles and boys' and juniors' singles are scheduled for Longwood August 22. The challenge round of the Davis Cup competition comes September 2 and the men's national singles at Philadelphia September 5.

As a majority of the foreign players here for Davis Cup ties will remain over for the entry list in the national singles will be the most imposing and most colorful from an international standpoint in the history of the event.

THEY LIVE AND THRIVE ON BATTLESHIP REGULATIONS

Everyone remembers how big-hearted Admiral McCully, U. S. N., adopted seven little Russian waifs and brought them home to become true American citizens. Now they eat, play, sleep and dress as prescribed by their "quarter-dack" daddy is told in next Sunday's Advertiser.

MEDBURY

Says Most Couples Don't Like to Live in a Lighthouse Because There Are No Neighbors to Fight With

The government is advertising for keepers of lighthouses. This is a great chance for some couple to t ake up lighthouse keeping.

A lighthouse is a big tower with a light in the top to keep the boats from running into it. If they'd take the tower down they wouldn't need the light.

They usually put these lighthouses out in the middle of the ocean with nothing around them but water. This is Voltaire's idea of a home.

The government needs new keepers because they had to fire a few. One of these keepers put the light out every night because it kept him awake.

Another guy kept the light on all night, but he pulled the shades down.

You can't blame them for wanting a little privacy.

This is a good job and you can go to shore once a month. The management lets you use the ocean for nothing. All you have to do is furnish the cowboat.

Most couples don't like to live in a lighthouse because there are no neighbors to fight with.

And any couple gets tired fighting between themselves.

The government furnishes you with stamps and you can write as many letters as you want. The only trouble is there's no place to mail them.

You've got a nice place to live and the whole ocean is your backyard. The only gets you can keep are water dogs and catfish.

The boats deliver your groceries once a week if they don't lose your address.

If they do lose it, just turn the light out some night and they'll find you.

The Government also furnishes you with medical service. If you're sick a doctor sends you a wireless telling you what kind of medicine you should take if you could get it.

Every year you get two month's vacation. This gives you a chance to go to the seashore.

Every man likes to get away once a year and rough it for awhile.

If you get lonesome in the lighthouse you can talk to yourself and listen to the echo.

Always remember to take a calendar along with you. In case there should be a bad storm and you got drowned you want to know what day you died on.

It would be a terrible thing to die on a holiday and have them take it out of your pay.

It isn't so bad being on a fifty-foot rock out in the middle of the ocean when you get Saturday afternoons off.

Of course you can't go anywhere, but that isn't the Government's fault.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO MAKE CHANGE IN GOLF STYLE, SAYS HUTCHISON

By JOCK HUTCHISON

When I stepped off the boat at New York after my recent return from Scotland with the British Open Championship trophy under my arm, I was met by many friends at the dock who wished to congratulate me on the victory. Some of these was from a laddie who insisted on asking me the curious questions to ask me the one that interested me most over my game to permit me to win knowing what had suddenly come when I could never perform the on the other side of the Atlantic feat over here.

"Surely Jock," said he, "you've got a message for the great army of American golfers that is going to be of great benefit in improving their golf game. Why don't you write us an open letter and tell us the secret."

Unfortunately, I doubt my ability to put anything into words that will make champions out of everyone, but I have jotted down a few things in the line of advice that I think every one should know. Perhaps these ideas are new and perhaps not. I will guarantee that if followed closely and religiously that some good will come out of it.

The average American who takes up the game is past th eage when he can claim the suppleness of youth as one of his assets. Golf is not old enough in this country for us to say that the fundamentals of the game are inherited from our fathers. We, therefore, should begin by forgetting several things, and chief among them would be the baseball swing.

It is a fact that every man likes to believe himself an athlete. When he takes up golf, he hates to admit there is anything about the game he can't master in short order. His ability to play baseball is not the asset he thinks it to be, as the two games are so dissimilar that a knowledge of one in a handicap in playing the other.

When playing baseball forget golf; when playing golf forget baseball. Cricket players in England have much the same experience to go through.

The first thing to learn is the proper swing. Get some one to show you how it is done. Naturally I would suggest for your own good that that someone be a pro, or at least, one who knows. You, I am sure, would have more confidence in a good pro and besides this is his business. This is the game for the low net, but for other players who have been struggling at the game for years without making any success. If your style is all wrong, don't hesitate to change it. The greatest mistake is to start wrong. Then you are worse off than before you first swing at the ball.

No matter how long one has played the game there is always room for improvement. I changed my grips and methods during the last year and I feel that this is mainly responsible for my winning the British title, but I will tell you more about my charge later.

Learn the swing with the various clubs first and then practice them whenever the opportunity offers. It need not be on the course at all. Your room will do, and it is not necessary to use a golf club. The essential success in hitting a golf ball is in the proper timing of the stroke. One must guard against hitting too soon with the body action instead of waiting for the club head to come through and do its work.

One peculiar thing about the game of golf is that the easiest effort producing the well timed stroke gains more distance than that in which a great amount of strength is wasted.

Talks for Golfers by Jock Hutchison

Jock Hutchison, holder of the British open and the American professional golf championships, has joined the sporting staff of the Boston American. Hutchison will write a series of golf articles, explaining how the various shots are played, and how the duffer can improve his game, develop steadiness in play and get results.

His stories will be printed on Mondays and Thursdays.

Unless the club head hits the ball before the body is governed in any work at all, the shot will be a failure. Success then would seem to come from doing all the work with the arms toward the hit before doing anything with the body at all except in making the pivot.

There are various grips but the one that comes natural to you is the best at first. Maybe there will be occasion to change later.

The common fault of the woman golfer is her tendency to over swing. Men as a rule err on the other side and are more inclined to shorten their swing. Women folk are not usually athletic and they get the idea that a great long swing puts more power into the stroke. Men who have short swings inherit it from their baseball days.

In playing the iron shots the serious mistakes made by the duffers I find is the attempt to scoop the ball with the arms or hands instead of letting the club do it. Each club has a loft on it all for a certain purpose. There should be no attempt to do anything but let the ball with the club you select, permitting the loft on the club to take care of the flight. In attempting to carry over a deep gully or a water hazard or over a trap, the duffer often gets a terrible fright. He unconsciously wants to help with his arms to raise the ball and the result is a topped shot. If one only knew this is one of the easiest shots in the game.

Most of these things are intended for the beginner and the duffer. Some of the so-called good golfers fail to score better because of mistakes that are just as glaring. One chief fault with the average good golfer is his mashie plays. This club is all important in scoring. Even star players are short in their approaches instead of being hole high or over. It is just as easy to return to the hole as it is to play up to it.

Few amateurs are ever up to the hole in a pitch shot. One way to correct this very serious fault is to play for the top of the pin. If one were to keep tabs on his approaches I am certain he would be greatly shocked to discover how often he fell short of the pin.

Babe Delights 2,000 Orphan Boys With 43d Home Run

Babe Ruth gave the greatest sort of delight to 2,000 orphan boys at the Yankee-Athletics baseball game at Philadelphia yesterday when he lofted a fast one over the Shibe Park field for his forty-third home run. It puts him four ahead of last season's record. The boys yelled hysterically when their hero did the trick for them.

TRACK MEN GO AFTER NEW RECORDS

Leading Stars to Compete in Central A. A. U. Meet in Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Several records are expected to fall tomorrow when a large number of the leading athletes of the Middle West compete at Stagg Field, in the annual outdoor track and field championships of the Central A. A. U.

Among the athletes entered are Jole Ray, Frank Loomis, Dewey Alberts, crack high jumper of the University of Illinois, and Sol Butler, who will attempt to set a new mark in the running broad jump.

TENDLER TO SHOW IN ALL-STAR BOUTS

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—An all-star card for the night of August 24, at the Philadelphia National baseball park, has been announced by the promoters of the Tendler-Benny Leonard match for the world lightweight title, which was to have been held tonight, but which was indefinitely postponed when Leonard, the champion, dislocated his thumb.

In the windup Tendler will meet Sailor Friedman of Chicago. Other matches include Johnny Dundee, New York, vs. Joe Tiplitz, New York; George Chaney, Baltimore, vs. Harry (Kid) Brown, Philadelphia, and Danny Kramer, Boston, vs. Charley Ledoux, the French bantamweight.

ILLINOIS GRID STAR MAY BE LOST TO GAME

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Charles Carney, named by many experts as an end on the mythical all-American football eleven last fall, is recovering today from an operation that probably has put an end to his footballcareer.

The Illinois star sustained a torn ligament in his knee during the 1920 football season which necessitated the operation and physicians say it is unlikely that the knee would again stand the strain of football.

CHILDS AND WHITNEY FINISH WITH HOLTON AND INGALLS IN DARK

By ROBERT E. HARLOW

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Aug. 12.—It was 8:18 o'clock last night when Ed Childs and Bob Whitney of Lexington won from H. H. Holton and H. B. Ingalls of Todesco at the twenty-second hole in a third round match of the invitation four-ball golf tourn ament at the beautiful Essex County Club. This match was the longest of a day in which sixty-four pairs engaged in eighteen-hole matches, morning and afternoon.

* * *

When Childs and Whitney won it was do dark that Holton could not see the pin from fifteen yards off the green and it was impossible to see the cup from twenty feet. Childs and Whitney found Holton and Ingalls full of good golf and were willing to admit that at the fourth extra hole, it was their better sight that finally won.

* * *

The light was falling when this foursome reached the home green all even. They halved the first extra hole in fives, the second in fours and the third in fours, the shots being played in half light. At the fourth hole both the caddies were sent out ahead and spread about like outfielders. It was impossible to see the balls as they left the tee. The caddies did well to locate all balls, defening for them to drop and then running to the spots and standing by while the players came up.

* * *

Whitney played his second shot of the green, pitched his third on and won with a five. Holton stated that he could not even see his ball on the ground as he took his stance. He topped his third into a brook which guards the green. Ingalls could not do better than a six.

* * *

Eight pairs remained in the first flight when fourth round matches were played today, but thirty-two pairs were split in the tournament, eight pairs remaining in the beaten sixteen of the first flight, eight in the regular division of the second flight and the same number in the beaten sixteen of the second flight. Thursday's play will be held one-half and there was less congestion today.

* * *

Fred B. Elliot and J. A. Hyll of Woodland won their way into the fourth round of the first flight by beating L. Foster and J. S. Rush at the nineteenth hole, after Elliot put a mashie shot dead at the home green to keep the match alive.

Ernest Manson and W. R. Nickolson of Framingham, after being forced to the twentieth hole in the morning to win from W. F. Prescott and C. E. Nicol, of Essex, defeated Thomas Claflin, of Brookline, and W. H. Hunter, of Wollaston, four and two in the afternoon, where they were aided by a four-shot handicap and able assistance by Nickolson, played fine golf.

* * *

Claflin and Hunter were considered one of the strongest pairs in the tournament. Two other likely looking pairs were forced from the running today and Thursday's play will be announced today.

The Summary:

BRAVES DISPLAY PUNCH IN RETURN TO WIGWAM

By NICK FLATLEY.

Our Braves have decided to do a bit of climbing again, and staged their first real effort this afternoon when they put on a double-header with the Phillies. They considered the initial victory merely a warm-up, but quite a true test. The team was fagged out from a long voyage from Saint Looey, and the athletes really couldn't put much kick into their efforts.

They played smooth baseball, however, and discovered that beating the invaders' best pitcher was just about the medicine they needed to brace them up for a sweep through the series.

The teams have another double bill on tomorrow's program, and a collection of the four games would haul the club much closer to the roof than it is at present.

The seven-game gap looked miles wide, while the Mitchells were being assaulted in St. Louis, but now that they are home and picking on the weaker clubs, the distance has diminished considerably.

Both Pirates and Giants have showed as many signs of cracking as the Braves. In fact, teams like the Cardinals and the Dodgers begin to look like contenders. Any one of the three leaders that can upset right now can romp down the home stretch clutching the hairards of the pennant.

The Braves really seem to have an edge for the next week. They have the two double-headers with the Philadelphians, who give very little trouble to anybody; then they entertain the Cubs, who have been soft picking all year. Change of managers there hasn't braced the club up a bit yet.

The Cubs play five games here in four days, and if the Braves go true to form, they should win at least four of them. A grand slam, as they say in bridge, when they take all the tricks, isn't improbable in that setto, either.

You can inform your friends, who will tell you they know it anyhow, that a winning streak through the Phil and Cub series would put the Braves right at the attic door, with sufficient momentum to make their entry there merely a matter of time and nothing else.

And while we think of it, there's a bona scrap over in Brooklyn Sunday that might be sandwiched in, and help the cause greatly.

* * *

The trip from St. Louis, with the crowded Quaker series added, plus a Sunday jump to Brooklyn, doesn't give the Tribe much time to rest in the immediate future, but there's consolation in the fact that Monday will be a vacation period. The Cubs report Tuesday p. m.

* * *

After thirty-six hours of training the Braves naturally were in shape to start their final drive for the pennant and their last home stand. So they dropped the tail-end Phillies and gave all the evidences necessary that they can play very alright baseball on the native pasture.

* * *

The cinders in the eyes, and memories of a couple of evenings' sleep wrecked by bumps and stops, and other railroad joys, slowed the athletes up a bit, but they came through, though it took ten innings to turn the trick, and now after a night's real rest, they are ready to mop up the double-headers that wind up the series.

* * *

It was a mighty good ball game for a travel-logged outfit, and the Braves haven't played better defensive baseball all season. Ford, Barbare and O'Neil had the chances to shine, and did, and told the world that the Braves are out to get somewhere on this home stand.

* * *

The Phills' real obstacle, pitcher Lee Meadows, was hurdled in the opener, and the Mitchmen aren't worrying much about the other Phil pitchers that may be tossed against them. Meadows chucked one of his good games, but Hughey McQuillan was much better, and except for one chapter, never was seriously bothered. The count of the tilt was 2 to 1, though if the Braves needed a dozen in that final stanza, they were all set to get them. The contest ended with the corners clogged, and nobody out.

* * *

Lloyd Christenbury was the big hero in the climax, coming up as a pinch hitter for Hoke, whose ligrained thumb makes him anything but a real menace with the war club. When Lloyd appeared on the scene there were three of the tired Phillys perched on the various mattresses. As we remarked earlier, nobody was out. Nobody is yet, for Lloyd thumped the second pitch miles over the outfielders' heads in right centre, so far that the Phils cut that way didn't even pursue the baseball. The fact that the rescue hitters are assuming the hero role, is a signal that the Braves are stepping back onto the victory trails.

The situation was manufactured primarily by Captain Will Southworth, who slapped a double just inside the foul line to start the round. Cruise busted and Catcher Bruggy heaved a third, but Captain Will arrived before the spate. Then the dangerous Mister Boeckel was passed. Hoke was due and the hostiles were willing to take a chance. But Manager Mitch switched the program, shot Lloyd in there, and touched off the fireworks.

* * *

The Braves had chance after chance to score, but the big blow was missing until the extra round rolled along. The drive started just as the 5 o'clock whistle tooted, and some waggish fan advised the Phils that it was time to knock off work. They didn't have much overtime to put in at that.

Wheat Waves for Seven Hits in Ten Chances

Each Wheat, the Brooklyn outfielder, had a large time with the well-known bludgeon yesterday. Each ambled to the home platter ten times during the afternoon and in the progress of the two games of the double-header with the Giants smacked the ol' appul lustily seven times. He had one three-bagger, two doubles and four singles. His day's average was .700. Seven out of ten, for a total of eleven, is a good day's work.

Pittsfield Aug. 12.—The Boston Red Sox had to score eight runs in the last two innings here yesterday to register a 10 to 9 win over Pittsfield's Eastern League team. Furthermore it was necessary to send Sam Jones to the peak for the final frame to sew up the game.

The Hillies found Benny Karr soft and touched him up for 14 hits.

BIG RACING BILL AT REVERE SATURDAY

Most Attractive Card of the Season at Beach Cycle Track

Lively competition is assured in the big card of racing scheduled tomorrow night at the Revere cycle track. The thirty-five-mile international race brings together two crack Yankee riders in competition against two brilliant Frenchmen. Clarence Carman and George Chapman will represent America, while Georges Seres, world's champion, and Lucien Miquel will be the French standard bearers.

In addition the special sprint series between Willie Keller, New England professional mile champion, and Frank Cavanaugh, the big Celtic champion, which has been ranging fire since Willie won the title, will be staged.

There are many who believe "Cav" can take the measure of Keller, despite the fact that the last-named has been winning quite regularly since he annexed the title. "Cav" will have his bicycle properly tuned up in the championship contest. Just as it appeared as if Cav would pass Keller, the big fellow suffered a punctured tire, which cost him a chance to win.

Four prominent professional sprinters will figure in the Australian pursuit race. Tom Grimm, Sailor Cobert, Hugh McFarland and Ralph Spiers have been selected for that event. These men are always found in the money in the pro sprints.

The usual professional and amateur sprints will also be held, rounding out the most attractive card of the season at the Revere oval.

A Spirited and Swiftly Moving Romance of Hearts and High Society, by the Greatest Living Master of Fiction

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

Dick Quarren, society idler and spendthrift, but clever and good looking, has fallen desperately to love with Sirelas Leeds. She has had one unfortunate matrimonial experience, and since her advent into New York high society has admirers by the score. Quarren meets her first at a masked ball given by Molly Wycherly, wins an hour out of her life on a wager and refraining from kissing her, so he tells her he is eager to do. She tells him there can be nothing serious between them, but she asks him to always think well of her. The Dankmere galleries are opened and Quarren takes a few days off at Witch-Hollow. Sirelas tells him she is to marry Langly Sprowl. He tells her that he loves her. Sirelas tells him the story of her marriage to Leeds. He returns to town and finds Westgard giving a lively party in the art gallery. Dankmere hires a pretty stenographer. Dankmere falls in love with her. Sirelas discovers Sprowl's true character and refuses to marry him.

ON distant hillcrests a Sprowl could see how he broadened his sway, switching their tails against the sky; farther away sheep dotted hillside pastures. Farther still the woods of Witch-Hollow lay basking with sunshine and shadow. And Sprowl's protuberant gaze grew fixed and expressionless as he swung on across the meadows and skirted the first grove of oaks, huge outlying pickets of his splendid forest beyond.

"We can talk here," said Ledwith in a voice which sounded hoarse and painful. "I always ventured on him. Sprowl saw that he was in distress, fighting for breath and leaning against the trunk of an oak.

"What do you want to talk about?" said Sprowl.

The struggle for breath left Ledwith mute.

"Can't you walk and talk at the same time?" demanded Sprowl. "I need exercise."

"I've got to rest."

A Sad Case

"Well, then, what have you got to say?—because I'm going on. What's the matter with you, anyway," he added sneeringly; dope?"

"Partly," said Ledwith without resentment.

"What else?"

"Anxiety."

"Oh. Do you think you have a monopoly of that?"

Ledwith, without heeding the sneering question, went on, still resting his elbow against the tree-trunk.

"I want to talk to you, Langly. I want straight talk from you. Do I get it?"

"You'll get it; go on," said Sprowl contemptuously.

"Then—my wife has returned."

"Your ex-wife," corrected Sprowl without a shade of expression in voice or features.

"Yes," said Ledwith—"Mary. I left the house before she arrived. I let the house before she arrived. I let the house before she arrived. I let

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

How do you account for it?

The country's religious publications have done better than almost any other class since the bottom fell out of things.

I wonder if the reason is that when everything is prosperous and "life flows along like a song," we become self-satisfied, complacent, pompous, possessed of the idea that we know it all and that we are very smart and brilliant and superior?

Is it not true that virtually every class became cocky during the abnormal prosperity caused by the war? Didn't profiteers and others whose profits multiplied intoxicatingly start to spend money ostentatiously and extravagantly, buying imposing new businesses, costly new automobiles, expensive jewelry, furs, etc.? And didn't labor leaders become extremely arrogant? In short, didn't America indulge in an orgy of luxurious and righteous living? Theatres and other amusement places of all kinds, fashionable hotels, noted pleasure resorts, etc., become far more crowded than our churches.

There was every indication that we had lost our heads, that we felt we were some pumpkins and that we had learned the secret of making lots of money.

* * *

Then the collapse came. Paper profits vanished overnight. Fat orders' books flattened out. Formidable fortunes were transformed into a scramble for work. Business failures began to occur here, there and everywhere. Unbridled spending ceased. Hardship stared many in the face.

Plunged from the clouds tops of prosperity to the depths of distress, many people suddenly and poignantly realized that they were not quite so brilliant, not quite so clever, not quite so able, not quite so powerful, not quite so self-sufficient as they had foolishly imagined they were. As the hard times grew worse instead of better, the chastening process became more pronounced. Humility began to take the place of pride.

Reason began to take the place of arrogance. Caution began to take the place of the know-it-all spirit. In a word our inflated pride was effectively pricked. He descended to mother earth with a thud.

In this frame of mind apparently there was a turning to religion. Apparently many of those who had come to rely solely on their own smartness concluded that they were not so sufficient as they had thought. Apparently, bitterly disappointed by the turn in things temporal, there was a reversion to things eternal.

A lot of people, it would seem, became a little like the tough seaman which the veteran Captain Bunker Dollar, the practical steamship king, is fond of telling about. On one sailing ship was a bully who during a long voyage had cowed it over all the sailors. One little chap decided that he would have it out with the bully although he was quite sure that he could lick him. Creeping quietly into the fo'castle, the tough offered up this prayer:

"You know, Lord, that I'm not one of them guys that keeps pestering you all the time, asking you to do things for them. I am not going to ask you to do anything for me now. All I ask is that you don't help Lula other guy."

When you analyze things to the very bottom, the only deduction you can draw is that both prosperity and depression are the direct result of a state of mind. When things go well the moral, the ethical standard begins to sink. Boom times invariably bring an increase of extravagance and loose living. In due time this brings disaster.

Hardship begets a better frame of mind. Economy is exercised. Pride, arrogancy, boastfulness and the like give way to humility, thrift, industry and earnestness of purpose. This, in turn, gradually brings about sounder conditions all round, and the movement toward prosperity is again under way. Therefore, prosperity carries in its seeds of its own destruction. And the cycle is started all over again.

In view of this is it not significant and gratifying to find that there has been a notable turning to religious publications in this country during recent months? Does it not suggest that we are faced toward prosperity?

Foreign Trade Decreasing

Foreign trade is decreasing on as large a scale as domestic commerce, the government estimate of the number of vessels passing through the Panama Canal in the month of June indicates.

Business exports for June $1,329,414,000 against $651,136,478 for corresponding 1920 month, while imports amounted to $307,000,000 as compared with $537,115,571. The trade balance was in favor of the United States to the extent of $544,000,000.

Withdrawing Less Whiskey

There was a great decrease in the withdrawal of bonded whiskey during the first half of 1921 as compared with the first six months of 1920. The slump was 3,583,292 gallons or 71.04 per cent. Internal revenue collections show a decrease of $14,312,519, or 34.17 per cent, in the sales of stamps for sole beverage spirits.

Rate Division Conference

A conference within a week between representatives of New England roads, the Central Freight Association and trunk lines on rate divisions is expected. The tentative passing arrangement which failed early this year was designed to give the New England roads about $15,000,000 up to March 2, 1922.

Stocks Irregular at Noon; Call Money Still at 6%; Sterling Exchange Lower

PROFIT-TAKING DIMINISHES GAINS

Central Leather Issues Sell at New Lows; Western Union Crosses 81

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, but the tone had become rather heavy, selling pressure being evident in the second hour. The decline of Central Leather issues was a feature, the preferred selling at a record low and the common at its lowest in six years or more. Industrial Alcohol was down to a low for six years and Continental Can to its bottom figure of the year. Western Union was among strongest stocks, selling above 1. Traders who had sold it short were covering, and it was higher by more than six points from its low of the week.

Trading was quiet, morning transactions approximating a total of 210,000 shares. Call money opened at 6 per cent. Foreign exchange was weak, demand sterling starting 5¢ lower at $3.66¾.

TONE SOON IMPROVED.

The market had a heavy tone at the opening, being off a point or so, but it was slow and steady improvement and before noon many of the losses had been regained. Mexican Petroleum made the largest gain, while Sears Roebuck and General Asphalt receded the most. The orders which accumulated over night were to sell in the majority of instances and this caused recessions at the start. Subsequent advances was largely due to short covering. The market was said to be generally oversold. This applies particularly to a number of specialties. Professional sentiment is at present now said to be bearish as any time during the year or for months before. But the selling campaign has extended to assaults from day to day upon such issues as current events seem to make particularly vulnerable.

EXPECT LOWER PRICES.

In financial districts there seems to be general expectation of lower prices for securities. Trade news indicates small profits or none at all for many corporations for a long period to come. It is stated that both commercial and industrial conditions are getting better. Readjustment is proving a tedious process. There is more apprehension than the situation justifies, but fear that some dire thing will happen is widespread. The coming winter is expected to be a period when unemployment will cause a great deal of suffering and will be attended by the social disquietude which goes with "hard times." But there is no reason why such standing as has been passed through and that inevitable readjustment will not be completed by the great year is about over.

The Federal Reserve ratio continues to climb. This week it is 65.6, as compared with 63.7 a week ago. New York again shows strength, standing at 70.1 against 69.2. Boston's ratio declined from 79.7 to 77.2, but is still a strong figure. For a long time the bank here has been in the strongest position of any of the twelve.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Aug. 12.—Business was fairly active in the cotton futures market at the opening today and initial prices were irregular at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points. Wall Street and Liverpool gold, which were bearish factors, also showed considerable strength. Continued high temperature in Texas, except for local showers, was also a bullish factor, the weather bureau forecasting the best night's close. Opening prices were: October, 13.25; December, 13.70; January, 13.79; March, 13.98; May, 14.05 to 14.06; July, 14.14.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Wheat opened ¼ to ¾ higher; corn was ¼ to ½c higher, and oats were unchanged. Late Liverpool cables influencing prices were: Wheat—September, 1.49¾; December, 1.52¾. Corn—September, 87¾ to 88; December, 87¼ to 88. Oats—September, 38½; December, 38¾. Lard—September, 10.55 to 10.92½. October, 11.10.

FORD'S RAILROAD OBJECT LESSON TO BUSINESS

How Brainy Enterprise Has Brought Prosperity to Once Losing Proposition

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—One corporation officer suggests there is a lesson of profound importance to the American business man in what Henry Ford has done with the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad. He catalogues Mr. Ford's achievement in this instance under five headings:

1—Reduced a deficit into a surplus during the hard period of the first six months of 1921.

2—Reduced the train schedule two hours.

3—Took private cars away from operating officials.

4—Increased maximum of 1,296 cars till twelve hours whereas the maximum might been 200 in twenty-four hours.

5—Relieved union labor working conditions that had been established under working conditions and rates of pay that were without recognition of the "closed shop."

IMPRESSIVE LESSON.

The corporation official is right. There is a most impressive lesson in what Ford has done with this railroad. There also is a great lesson in what he has done in other instances. But with all the evidence the Detroit man furnishes, the American business man is inclined to consider him as somewhat of a freak. Clever? Yes; extraordinarily clever, but a man to whose methods could not be applied generally to the infinite variety of industrial enterprise.

Men are inclined to believe their more successful fellows have been favored by luck or circumstances. They may say Ford was lucky in hitting on a type of car that met with public favor. But it was something other than luck that won him out of Wall Street, where all the others of his line landed, and it was something other than luck that kept him at the head of one of the major industries for 15 or more years.

MORE THAN MONEY.

More than money is requisite to success. The greatest banking house in America embarked on an elaborate railroading enterprise. That was an unusual adventure for money princes but one which was expected of it. Little or nothing has been heard of it for the last few years, and reports have it that the outcome was most disappointing to the banks.

Ford's success in the railroad field as well as in the automobile field is to be ascribed to plain common sense and practical scientific business. A genius does not make money.

Look at the facts. There was just as much traffic possible for the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton to obtain before Ford took it over as there is today. In fact there was a great deal more. But the road did not get the traffic because it was not fit to get it. Five of the seven gentlemen who controlled it preferred to let New York and dominated the property. Absentee landlordship isn't the best business.

IS THE SAME ROAD.

Why, if these men were "on the job," couldn't they have done what Ford has done? The road is the same as to rails and ties and cars and locomotives as it was a year or two years ago. In truth, Ford drew to it all the traffic he obtains, but if the road is of great use to him today, its managers, if they were keen, could have made it of great use to him years ago and commanded the traffic.

Under its old management, it lost from $1,000 to nearly $2,000 a day, and now on the verge of financial collapse when Ford took it over. Now it has an operating profit of approximately $3,000 a day. It is true Ford put a lot of money into the property to improve and modernize it, but that the most revolutionary thing of all was the idea of establishing higher than union wage scale, and a minimum wage of 36 a day. That to most railroad managers would have seemed to be folly. But in this case it has increased the per-hour production of the men remarkably.

BUSINESS AND GOLF.

It is far more important for men to improve their business than improve their golf.

Of the two it would be preferable if they could do both. He typifies simple, common sense methods.

And those methods apply to golf.

The wastes in American business, especially in distribution, are great. They have run

Famous Movie Star All Cut to Pieces

The operator of the movie machine at a Big Theatre thought he would play a joke on the Royal Circus one afternoon, so he cut up into 10 parts a famous movie actor all to pieces and threw it on the screen. The pictures showed the actor cut up in 10 parts. If you paste the eight cut-out parts together and arrange them so they show the picture of this famous star? To do this you will have to use every one of the 10 parts. Then, after you think you have correctly arranged the parts and have pasted them on a piece of paper, the picture of this famous Movie Star will be plain. Then you will be able to tell who the Movie Actor is. If you send the Puzzle Picture together correctly you will receive 25 "Points." Then if you can guess the correct name of the Movie Actor you will gain 10 more "Points." Twenty-five "Points" will be given to any Boy or Girl under 16 years of age who correctly arranges the picture of the Movie Actor and 10 "Points" will be given for correctly guessing the Movie Actor's name, so you will have 35 "Points" to win the CULVERT RACER. In guessing the name, 10 only takes 60 "Points" to win the CULVERT RACER or the $200.

Only 60 "Points" Wins First Prize

COMMUNISM IN ITALY BROKEN, SAYS TITTONI

Lost Popular Favor From Time Workmen Seized Factories, He Declares

By Associated Press.

Williamstown, Aug. 13.—Communism's grip upon popular favor in Italy was definitely broken when the government refused to take any drastic measures of repression against the seizure of factories by the workmen, Tommaso Tittoni, president of the Italian Senate, told the Institute of Politics at Williams College today.

"From the day the workers complied the factories and were obliged to realize the impossibility of their taking over the entire administrative control," said Senator Tittoni, "communism lost ground daily among the great mass of the people."

"But a new problem arose, namely, the inspection of the factories by the workmen, which is now before the Italian Parliament. On September 19, 1926, the premier, Signor Giolitti, invited representatives of the industrial federations to discuss the question with the labor confederation. No agreement was possible, and the government then presented a scheme by which for every category of industry, there should be created a commission, elected from workmen and engineers.

"This proposal, and also a second scheme proposed by the government, were considered insufficient by the general confederation of labor, and excessive for the general confederation of employers.

"Italy is by no means the only country that has had grave labor agitations. The movement which at the present time is peculiar to Italy is that of the peasantry and he agrarian socialism, unknown in other great countries, which has obtained an extensive footing in many parts of the peninsula. The occupation of the factories was a flash in the pan; it lasted but a few days, but the occupation of the land is a phenomenon of longer duration."

How Will Government Take Care of the Unemployed?

Should Put Them to Work on Reforestation and the Digging of Much-Needed Canals

The latest authentic reports indicate that there are already 5,000,000 people out of employment in America who sadly need work. That there is not more distress than exists throughout the country on account of this depression is because the workingmen saved a great deal more during their period of prosperity than the business class, and the newspapers, echoing as usual big business opinions, gave them credit for doing.

It was only the other day that a representative of the Boston American, talking with the president of one of the three or four largest corporations in America about business conditions, admitted that he with others had greatly underestimated the prudence of the workingmen.

Of course, the story of the extravagance of the workingman and of the lowering of his rate of production was propaganda largely, although there were some bad instances in which the story was true.

The Winter is coming on and unless things turn for the better, we are going to have suffering, for the savings of the workingmen won't last forever. What is our government proposing to do about it? Is it going to continue to pour money into our rotten, inefficient, corrupt, privately managed railroads under a pretence that this will help business, when it is known that the business depression has largely been caused by the highest freight and passenger rates the country ever saw or ever dreamed of? Or is the government going to find means of employment for these men?

Vast, undeveloped resources of the nation await development, which would yield ten-fold return on the money and labor invested. Now, when there is unemployment, is the time for the government to function in this direction.

If the Cape Cod Canal is to be widened and deepened so that all craft may pass through it; if the Mississippi River and the Ohio River are to be widened and deepened to make them greater waterways; if an inland canal is some day to connect the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico; if the arid deserts of the West are to be converted by irrigation into teeming acres; if our forests areas destroyed by the wanton wastefulness of Americans are to be reforested; if, in short, all these natural resources are to be developed so that two blades of grass will grow where one grows now, this is the time to begin these great undertakings.

New Zealand is taking care of its soldiers and unemployment by reforesting; and the government officials in charge allege that they will receive more than 100 per cent. return on the investment, while at the same time they are giving employment and bread and butter to their citizens threatened with hunger.

If our national government would spend one-half the time trying to find ways and means for doing justice to our soldiers and giving employment to those who, largely on account of the incapacity of our government or its control by powerful selfishness interests, are out of employment, as they spend money and time serving these great financial interests, we could banish the hard times. Hard times are an anachronism anyway. They are evidence of the improper functioning of our government and our social and economic system. They are always preventable.

Our government spends too much time receiving and carrying out orders from the international bankers and the interests which they control to have enough time left or much money left to serve the interests of the great majority of our people.

Those Wooden Ships

Can Nothing Be Done With Them? Think It Over

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The Government of the United States, while snugly nestling in the hands of profiteers during the war built $250,000,000 worth of wooden ships.

The men that built the ships got the money, that is what chiefly interested THEM.

Now it is discovered by Mr. Lasker, practical head of the Shipping Board, who is endeavoring to save the people's money, that these ships are apparently ABSOLUTELY useless. Nobody wants to BUY them; it costs the government a million dollars a year to take care of them. Mr. Lasker's plan, unless something better is suggested, is to take these ships, TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS worth of them, out to sea and sink them.

What would YOU do with those ships; how could they be used?

It has been suggested in this newspaper that they might be hauled to the rivers and bays, fastened to the shore and used by citizens as Summer homes or camps, sleeping on deck in nice weather, going below in bad weather, with bunks and sitting rooms below the decks.

But Mr. Lasker says it would cost more than anybody would pay to tow these ships to places where they would be wanted. When the suggestion was made to him he was inundated with letters, thousands of them a day. Spare him a repetition of that affliction, but think it over. If you really want TO BUY such a ship write to the Shipping Board, ask how big the ships are and what they would cost. Since Mr. Lasker intends to sink them and destroy them utterly, you might be able to buy for $5 apiece, or even ten cents, a ship that cost a fortune.

With the rest of your thinking, don't forget to include a little thought about the kind of United States patriots that allowed the government to spend $250,000,000 building ships that are now absolutely worthless, and that, in the public interest, Mr. Lasker will probably be compelled to tow out into the ocean, where they will be sent to the bottom.

What is your plan? Perhaps the ships could be beached at high tide on low shores where fishermen or others could break them up for firewood. That would be better than sinking them.

Soldiers and The Sales Tax

The soldiers need the money the country owes them, and they need it NOW—not next year or the year after that.

The government admits the justice of their claims, but asks them to wait because it has not the money on hand or in sight this year.

A sales tax of 1 per cent. on all turnovers would pay every dollar due to the soldiers and leave at least a billion dollars in the treasury.

Compensation for the soldiers and the sales tax to raise the money—that's our platform.

We think it is a good one.

When Good Fellows Get Together

Results to Date of Prohibition

"What Has Prohibition Actually Accomplished to Date?" asked William Randolph Hearst editorially in the Boston American of July 9. One hundred dollars will be paid for the best answer of not more than 150 words received before August 15.

Removed Easy Access

Editor Boston American:

Prohibition has removed to a large extent the source and easy access of intoxicating liquors. It has therefore reduced the number of new addicts.

It has spared thousands from moral and physical ruin. The lack of dissecting material in our medical schools and the closing of numerous penal institutions since the adoption of the Volstead Act is not a mere coincidence, but a vital proof of its effect.

Granted it has temporarily increased the number of drug fiends, it has permanently removed its fundamental cause.

It has decreased crime both at home and in the street. The unprecedented number of bootleggers is no indication that lawlessness is on the increase. Prohibition has merely attracted lawless people to the practice of moonshining.

It has set up a higher standard of living.

The Blasphemy of Guns

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

THERE must be lonely moments
when God feels
The need of prayer—
Such lonely moments, knowing not anywhere,
In any spot or place,
In all the far recesses of vast space,
Dwells anyone to whom his prayers may rise,
And then, methinks is his need—
God bids his ... descend.
He that has ears to hear, let him take heed.
For much God's prayers portend.

God flings his solar system forth to be Finished by beings who befit each sphere.
Not ours to pry the secrets out of Mars;
Our work lies here.
To star-folk, leave the stars.

There must be many worlds that give God care;
Young worlds that glow and burn,
Old worlds that freeze and fade.
This world is man's concern.
Methinks God must be very much dismayed.
Seeing the use we make of earth today,
While loud we pray.

Last night, in sleep beyond earth's small zone,
Adventurously my spirit soared alone.
Past lesser hells and heavens, where souls may pause
To learn the meaning of death's larger laws,
Past astral shapes and bodies of desire,
Past angels and archangels, high and higher,
Until the pinnacle of space it trod,
Then queststruck, paused, hearing the voice of God.

"Mortals of earth, for whom I have shaped a sphere"
(So spake the Voice), "there rises to mine ear
Eternal praises and eternal pleas.
Now, after centuries, I tire of these.
Have ye no knowledge of the Maker's creeds?
Ye who ask favors and who praise by creeds?
Why has it not sufficed
That unto this small earth I sent great Christ,
Divine expression of the mortal man,
To aid my plan?

"Why ask for more when all has been refused?
Why praise my name who hourly am abused?
Why seek for Me or heaven, when in you dwells
Hate's lurid hells?

"Persistent praises and persuasive pleas—
I tire, I tire of these.
But I, the Maker of a billion suns,
Ask men to stop the blasphemy of guns.
This is God's prayer."

(There must be many worlds that give God care.)

World Work

"If China and Russia could be drawn upon for their man power in manufacturing we would have not an eight-hour, but an eight-cent workday," declared a New York banker.

"Before the war, Americans Englishmen, Germans, and Scandinavians owned factories in Russia.

"None of the things manufactured by the foreigners was sold outside Russia because great Russia consumed them all.

"But the day may come when foreigners will draw upon the man power of Russia for factory production for a large part of Europe.—August Hearst's International.

MONARCHISTS PLOT JEWS' SLAUGHTER

Tsarist Organization, Formed in Russia to Overthrow Soviet, Planned Wholesale Massacre

Following is the third of Herman Bernstein's articles exposing the Russian monarchists' organized plan to upset the Soviet Government by wholesale Jewish massacres, with the ultimate hope of placing again on the throne a Russian Tsar.

This article is the translated report of the meeting of the Committee of "Saving the Fatherland" held on February 25, 1921, in Constantinople, and is as follows:

By HERMAN BERNSTEIN.

PROTOCOL NO 3

of the session of the Committee of Saving the Fatherland.

February 25, 1921.

President, General Krivoshein. Present: General S. G. Klimovitch, General K. L. Slaschev, Father Vostokov and P. S. Lukomsky. Secretary, A. Petrusevitch.

GENERAL SLASCHEV—Our aim is to defeat the enemy. Consequently our forces must be directed towards an active struggle. We need less desk work, less talk and fewer heroes in the rear. We need a front, and an active front. We must not bind our agents by instructions from the centre, excepting directing instructions and general tasks which should be militant in form.

In accordance with this I suppose it is essential to divide the entire region of activities into sections, in which we should establish operative centres in the form of headquarters. Every such headquarters should embrace a territory with approximately the same conditions of work. These headquarters should be established in places most thickly populated by Jews, as well as in the administrative centres of our enemy, in the army and wherever there are revolutionary detachments and armies.

The headquarters must have the closest relations with one another, as well as with the nearest base. These relations should be maintained by special couriers.

The bases should be established temporarily outside of Soviet Russia, preferably in Poland and Rumania. They may later be established also in the Baltic States and Finland.

LOYAL AND DARING AGENTS.

Each headquarters should consist of an operative and information department. At every headquarters we must have an officer who enjoys our fullest confidence and who is to be clothed with full authority. We should take as agents only absolutely loyal and daring people. There should be no place in our organization for cowards and traitors.

The bases shall consist of a directing, information and agitation departments. Their purpose it to furnish the headquarters with means, literature, men and arms.

GENERAL KLIMOVITCH — As far as we may conclude from the report of his excellency, we are to undertake preparations for a military uprising and the overthrow of the Government. But an extremely important task is omitted in this report—and that is the struggle against the Jews. We must not lose sight of this, for only after having done away with the Jews may we consider ourselves masters of the situation and our mission as fulfilled. Therefore this plan should be elaborated so as to include a scheme for fighting the Jews.

GENERAL SLASCHEV.—It is my affair to create the machine. It is the business of the directing council to set the task for that machine. Whatever the task will be, such will be the work of our machine.

FATHER VOSTOKOV.—But what place does your excellency assign the clergy in this plan?

GENERAL SLASCHEV. — The priests are our agents. Consequently they must obey all instructions issued by the general staff and they must work in co-ordination with our other agents. Order and discipline —these are the first requisites in every organization.

COUNTER-ESPIONAGE.

LUKOMSKY—Here your excellency has pointed out that the headquarters is to consist of operative and information departments. How do you conceive the work of the information department?

GENERAL SLASCHEV.—The information department should be established along the lines of a counter-espionage department. Every agent is a secret investigator and informer. This combination is desirable, as the information department is entrusted to experienced and tried people, and besides it economizes our forces.

FATHER VOSTOKOV—I think that the clergy should not be subordinated to the General Staff. Their tasks are not of a military character, and therefore there is no reason for subjecting the clergy to military discipline and subordination. It would be more useful to place the clergy under the jurisdiction of the agitation department, creating in every church centre a corresponding branch of the department. It is well that we have at our command a ready organization, experienced and efficient, with our own discipline and methods of execution.

GENERAL KLIMOVITCH—There is a great deal of truth in the words of the Father. There is no doubt that the clergy will be with us. We have ready centres wherever there is an archbishop, and we have bases for propaganda in the monasteries.

Nevertheless, it is necessary to unify the work of all our agents; therefore, it is necessary to subject all religious centres and bases to the general headquarters and the general staff and establish the closest relations between the clerical and civilian centres.

GENERAL OUTLINES.

GENERAL KRIVOSHEIN—I suppose that the discussions on this subject may be considered ended. I do not deny that there are omissions in the plan as outlined by his excellency. But we should not forget that we are sketching here only a general outline. The details will be worked out by the work itself. We shall in the future also be guided by these principles in our work.

No special fudamental changes have been made in the plan outlined by his excellency. Therefore, taking it into consideration, together the remarks made by Father Vostokov, we may now proceed to the consideration of the other questions.

LUKOMSKY—The task of the information department is to know everything that is going on in the camp of the enemy. We must know not only his war plans and intentions, but also the frame of mind of his army, of his officials and of the people. We must be informed as to everything that is happening in Russia, as to the conditions of supplies, transport, ammunition and so-forth. We must know all their leaders and chiefs; we must have information about their intimate life, we must know their vices and their virtues. Particularly with regard to the Jews. We must know not only the extent of their participation in the Bolshevist government, but also all about their communistic, their national ans political feelings, their affairs and even their religious ceremonials and conference. We need all this so that we may come out with exposures, circulating rumors and exposing facts.

GENERAL KRIVOSHEIN—I see there is no one who desires to introduce any amendments. Therefore I suppose that we may take this plan into consideration.

The work of this session is ended. The next session will take place on March 4. The meeting of the committee is adjourned.

HOT WEATHER AND WORK

Progressive and successful employers are learning that it is a good thing for their employes to have sufficient time at the end of the day for a play spell.

It is more and more recognized that the worth-while employe is entitled to some right sort of amusement, something affording out-of-doors exercise and plenty of fresh air, making them more fit for their work, intensive, and more pep generally being shown as the result of a "work-and-play" combination.

The languid employe, the one who yawns and complains about the heat and spends more time thinking about his discomfiture than he does about his work, is not a profitable employe.

But all Summers are alike in this respect, so why complain about it?

Every working person has disagreeable things to do, according to his job.

Expect obstacles and unpleasant things, and have the spirit to overcome them and enjoy it, or you will never ride out of the circle of common worker.

Every employer should try to make conditions as comfortable as possible.
